Washington (CPA)—The main issue between the two great parties today in Washington seemed to be Charles Michelson. Numerous newspaper correspondents waited upon him in his publicity office in the Democratic national committee headquarters to learn what answer he had to make to the charges of "misrepresentation" brought against his publicity efforts by John O. Tilson, Republican floor leader of the house of representatives, by Will R. Wood, chairman of the Republican national campaign committee, and finally Monday night in a nation-wide radio address by Senator Simon D. Tress, chairman of the Republican national committee, who, without naming Mr. Michelson, stressed once more the alleged "false statements" issued against the Republican party and President Hoover from high Democratic official sources.

Mr. Michelson, being the medium through which all these sources operate, and being a figure long familiar in the press gallery of the national capital through many years of service in it as a correspondent of important newspapers, was readily identified by his visitors as being in all probability the very man to whom Will R. Wood was alluding in his public statement of last Sunday when he said that "a Mr. Michelson" had been employed at a large salary by John J. Raskob to "develop misrepresentations of President Hoover in every quarter of the United States."

GRANDON POSSES IN BANK BANDIT HUNT

Vance Purdy and Clyde Hanes Believed Hiding
Near Lumber Camp

Grandon, Wis.—Vance Purdy and Clyde Hanes, both of Grandon, who have kept Michigan and Wisconsin authorities on the alert for nearly a month, today kept a searching party busy near here in connection with bank robberies at Woodman, Wis., and Appleton, Wis., the two disappeared into the swamps in upper Michigan where they effectively played hide-and-seek with state police and sheriff's officers for a week. Posses gave up the hunt after they were convinced the men died in the swamps. A week ago a tip sent officers looking for the elusive pair in Door-co. Yesterday, A. M. Devourney, special investigator for the Wisconsin Bankers' association, led five deputies to an abandoned lumber camp where the men were reported in hiding. The officers found hot coals in a stove in a log cabin, but the occupants of the cabin were not seen. Devourney contended the men received food from outside sources and said the search would continue.

Baton Rouge, La.—(AP)—Quiet prevailed today in the Louisiana penitentiary after the killing of Curtis Blackwell, 19, Negro prisoner in a riot of more than 25 convicts who refused to work on a private rice farm and barricaded themselves in a temporary wooden cellhouse.

Guards climbed to an adjoining roof and gained admittance to the cellhouse by breaking in through a vent opening. The convicts within hurled missiles, and the guards opened fire. Blackwell was fatally wounded, a coroner's report said, by John Stovall, Negro trusty guard, serving a life sentence for murder.

Tents of a camp crew were fired upon Monday night by unidentified gunmen. The detachment under command of Captain Morris Moore was made up of three non-commissioned officers and ten enlisted men and was armed with rifles, pistols and tear gas bombs.

FLIER CAN'T GET SERVICE; SHOTS
OFF TEAR GAS GUN

Chicago—(AP)—George Dickson, a Pittsburgh aviator attending the National Air races, was arrested early today on the complaint of a restaurant manager that he had discharged a tear gas gun forcing all of the cafe's guests to flee to the street.

Fred Belhke, manager of Henrich's, told police that Dickson came into the restaurant shortly after midnight and became angered when Belhke told him it was too late to be served. The manager said Dickson pointed out the fact that others were still eating. Belhke said he told the aviator the others had all entered the cafe before the closing time but that Dickson still resented not being given a table and that he then discharged a small tear gas gun which quickly emptied the place.

BLEASE LEADS
IN S. CAROLINA
PRIMARY RACE

Rolph Apparent Victor in California—Borah Renominated in Idaho

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The 10,000-vote of Cole L. Blease for Democratic renomination to the senate from South Carolina stood out today with the continuation of tabulation of votes cast in yesterday's primaries.

In California, Mayor James Rolph, Jr. of San Francisco, was running ahead of Gov. C. C. Young by 40,000 votes for the Republican gubernatorial nomination. A majority of the precincts had reported.

Senator William E. Borah was renominated by the Idaho Republican convention. Both the Republican and Democratic conventions had yet to choose nominees for governor. With less than 600 of the 1,075 precincts remaining to report, Blease still had a chance for a majority of the votes cast for the three candidates in South Carolina. Unless this materializes, another contest between him and the runner-up, James F. Byrnes, will be held on Sept. 9. The nomination amounts to election.

SEE RUN-OFF VOTE

Columbia, S. C.—(AP)—Senator Cole L. Blease and Olin D. Johnston, Spartanburg legislator, led their fields for the United States senate and governor in yesterday's Democratic primary but returns compiled early today indicated both would have to enter a second race to win the nomination.

With 1,108 precincts of 1,532 accounted for, Senator Blease had 75,617 votes to 65,657 for James F. Byrnes of Spartanburg, former congressman, and 26,142 for Leon W. Harris, Anderson solicitor.

Johnston, 35-year-old World war veteran making his first bid for state wide suffrage, on a platform pledging a cessation of work on the $65,000,000 highway program, was far in the lead of the eight aspirants for the governorship.

In 1,154 precincts unofficially reported, Johnston received 45,507 votes. His nearest competitor was Turn to page 4 col. 7

LEGUA ILL AS HE FACES FOES
OF NEW REGIME

Reports from Lima Add to Anxiety of Deposed
Peruvian President

BULLETIN

Lima, Peru—(AP)—The military junta which overthrew the government of President Leguia and seized control of Peru will resign and Luis M. Sanchez Cerro will head a new government, according to reliable advices at noon today.

Lima, Peru—(AP)—Augusto B. Leguia, the old man of 67, tossed feverishly in bed aboard the cruiser Almirante Grau in Callao harbor today and sought a way out of the trap in which his political enemies, long suppressed, had caught him.

Increasingly ominous reports reached his bedside from Lima, where military junta, replacing his 11-year regime, promised the populace that he would be brought back and punished for the "misdeeds" of his dictatorship.

Friends and the diplomatic corps in Lima sought from General Manuel Maria Ponce, heading the military junta, assurances of his safety, but countering their efforts were the activities of returning exiles and freed political prisoners, with profound convictions of old and stoutheaded scores to settle.

The former president, whose status changed overnight from dictator of one of the most powerful South American republics to that of a prisoner awaiting judgment, was said today to be seriously ill although not gravely ill of a uremic attack which struck him down Monday afternoon.

HOPE FOR EXILE
The Admiral Grau returned to Callao harbor with the former president only after exiles which inspired a false hope of freedom in exile in Lima. Leaving Monday morning after his resignation, the officers of the cruiser thought to take their prisoner to Panama and land him there.

The junta informed the captain that if Leguia were not delivered to them within 48 hours the ship would be treated as an enemy vessel and its officers held on account.

The dissension between the junta here and the provisional government set up by the revolutionists at Arequipa, where the movement began last Friday, showed signs today of dissipating. Lieutenant Colonel Sanchez Cerro, head of the Arequipa movement, is expected here in person to negotiate with General Ponce.

Lieutenant Colonel Sanchez Cerro's decision to this end was reached after a conference with airplane emissaries of the Lima junta, who, Arequipa dispatches said, recognized him as chief of the revolutionary movement. Until their arrival Colonel Sanchez Cerro had refused to recognize the Lima junta, professing to see in it an instrument of the deposed president.

Manuel law is a force here. Complete order prevails.

Medina Girl
Wins State
Fair Contest

Within eight points of perfection in an educational test containing plenty of "nut crackers," Miss Janet Rieseberry, 12, representing Outagamie co., Wednesday morning received a gold medal and a silver loving cup at the Wisconsin State Fair, Milwaukee as Wisconsin's brightest student.

Miss Rieseberry, a pupil at Medina school last spring, won the county intelligence contest in reading, spelling and arithmetic, and the opportunity of entering the state contest under the auspices of the fair association.

She scored 1,213 out of a possible 1,221 points. Her nearest rival, Miss Carol Moely, 12, Prairie du Sac, representing Sauk co., received an even 1,200. Robert Nelson, Hayward, representing Sawyer co., had 990 points.

J. T. Gies, of the state department of education, presented Miss Rieseberry with the medal offered by the fair, and the cup offered by the American Legion. Miss Moely received a silver medal and Nelson a silver cup.

HURLEY TO MAKE
WATERWAY SURVEY

Trip May Expedite Projects
to Relieve Present Unemployment Situation

Washington—(AP)—Undertaking the most thorough and extensive survey of America's greatest engineering project yet made, Patrick J. Hurley, secretary of war, will leave the latter part of the week for an inspection of the Mississippi waterways system from Minneapolis to the Gulf of Mexico.

The secretary has a three-fold purpose in mind in making the trip by boat from the upper Mississippi to New Orleans. He wishes to gain first hand information on inland waterway enterprises, flood control projects and rivers and harbors works so in discussing these questions with President Hoover and advisers in Washington, he will have had an intimate picture of each situation.

Next, the trip will enable the secretary to survey a project as important as the Mississippi river, and benefit from the experience of the engineers. Almost equally important the secretary believes will be conferences with army engineers and consultants. Each of the distinct groups will be asked aboard the secretary's boat the present and future of the river to the bottom of the work now being done in their district.

Major General Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, and Thomas G. Ashburn, chairman of the Inland Waterways corporation, the leading officials in the army's waterways enterprises, will accompany the secretary over the entire trip, which, with side excursions by airplane, will aggregate nearly 2,000 miles.

REPORT WISCONSIN HAS
2,930,282 POPULATION

Milwaukee—(AP)—The population of Wisconsin is 2,930,282, according to the official tabulation released today from Washington through local census offices.

This is an 11.3 per cent increase over the 1920 population of 2,632,067. Southern counties, especially those along the lake shore, showed most of the gain. Many northern counties lost or barely held their own.

Outagamie co., the report shows, has a total population of 63,778, compared to 55,113 in 1920, or a gain 15.9. Neighboring counties reveal the following, the first figures in each case representing the 1920 population, the second the 1930 population, and the third the percentage of gain or loss: Brown, 70,141-61,539-13.3 gain; Calumet, 18,623-17,223-3.5 loss; Fond du Lac, 59,738-55,119-8.5 gain; Waupaca, 33,473-31,200-7.1 loss; Winnebago, 76,552-68,927-10.5 gain.

Navy Pursuit Plane Falls
Near Bleachers at Na-

BURSTS INTO FLAMES

Believe Pilot Reversed Controls While Attempting Roll at 100 Feet

Chicago—(AP)—Lieut. J. P. Deshazo, U. S. navy flier of Alhambra, was killed when he crashed to earth here this afternoon at the end of a beacher stand, barely missing hundreds who witnessed the navy 50 mile speed race in which he was a competitor. One spectator was reported seriously hurt. The pilot was burned beyond recognition as his plane burst into flames.

A cloud of flame and smoke arose immediately after the crash, which occurred just after the plane passed the first pylon in a navy race.

The plane was flying no more than 100 feet in the air, when the pilot attempted to do a spectacular roll. In the middle of the roll he was seen to slip groundward.

The beachers were a mile from the officials' box in the grand stand and a milling crowd of spectators and air race authorities quickly surrounded the scene of the accident.

The plane dived just at the end of the bleacher stand, near where a crowd of people was standing.

Expert pilots said they believed the flier became excited and reversed his controls while upside down, diving into the grand stand and intending to shoot his plane upward.

ESCAPE BY FLIGHT

Several persons seeing the plane rushing toward them, saved their lives by running. The plane was turned beyond recognition, but he was believed to have been killed instantly. He had finished third in the race.

Deshazo was unmarried. He entered Annapolis in 1921 and graduated in 1925. He was a member of the navy unit of stunt fliers known as the Fifth Fighting Squadron.

Confusion followed the crash. Persons in the bleachers leaped from all sides and others broke onto the field to run to the scene. Several fire department trucks were rushed across the field as flames shot into the air.

Deshazo barely missed several large transport planes standing at the south end of the field, his plane coming down in a space not more than fifty feet square.

It was believed at first that several persons had been crushed, as it appeared from the stands that the plane had crashed into the bleacher.

The navy planes were bunched together at the finish of the race, which was won by Lieut. D. S. Cornwell, flying at a speed of 127.23 miles.

Lieut. J. H. Campman was second at 125.05 miles and the dead pilot was in third place at 125.22 miles.

The confusion was so great, for race officials immediately started another event.

GOEBEL HOPS OFF

Metropolitan Airport, Los Angeles, Calif.—(AP)—Art Goebel, noted Los Angeles aviator and last of the five entrants in the Los Angeles-Chicago non-stop air race, took off at 5:15 a. m. today in an effort to better his own record in the event.

Goebel pulled his highwing monoplane into the air as quickly as its 500 gallon load of gasoline would permit and headed away east on his 1,713 mile flight. His plane is powered with a supercharged 425 horsepower motor.

Yesterday four other fliers flew to Chicago in varying times. They were William Brock, of Detroit, round-trip record; Harold G. Gatty, of Los Angeles, 2 round-trip record; Lee Schenckel, of Los Angeles, 2 round-trip record; and Post, of Oklahoma City.

New York Greets Four German Trans-Atlantic Fliers

VON GRONAU, 3 COMRADES END FLIGHT

Rebuilt Plane First Trans-Oceanic Aircraft to Land in City's Harbor

New York—(AP)—Nine days after their unheralded departure from Germany, Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his three companions rested here today, having completed the fourth successful westward crossing of the north Atlantic by airplane.

They landed their Dornier-Wal flying boat off the Battery wall at 2:45 p. m. (E. S. T.) yesterday having made the last lap of their flight from Halifax in six hours.

The flight fulfilled for Captain von Gronau, crisp-spoken veteran of the German Imperial navy flying service, an old dream and gained him the distinction of being the first to land a trans-Atlantic plane in New York harbor.

Added glamor was given the flight by the fact that it was made in an old reconnoitering ship, used by Amundsen in Arctic exploration and by Captain Frank Courtney in an abortive attempt to span the Atlantic.

It was estimated the fliers covered about 4,000 nautical miles in a flying time of 47 hours. Enroute they stopped in Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Nova Scotia.

TUG MISSES PLANE
It had been expected the plane would land off the Statue of Liberty and the municipal tug Macom with a reception committee aboard was headed there when the plane came down. The tug turned about and the fliers were transferred to her. After a reception ashore they returned to their plane and flew it to the East river where it was housed in a police hangar.

Captain von Gronau said they had no idea when they left the Isle of Sylk in the North sea that they were on their way to New York.

"We hope it is not very long before a transatlantic seaplane is landing in New York harbor every day," he said, but declared it would take a great deal of broad organization to make possible a transatlantic commercial service over the north Atlantic route.

Captain von Gronau said he and his companions expected to remain in New York several days and then hoped to visit the air races in Chicago, stopping in Washington.

DISCONNECTS PHONE
Warnemunde, Germany—(AP)—Because of congratulatory messages on the successful conclusion of her husband's flight from Germany to New York were entirely too frequent Frau von Gronau today ordered their telephone disconnected.

Since last night when the Associated Press informed the aviator's wife of his landing in New York, the telephone has rung constantly with friends, newspapers, acquaintances and even public officials calling to congratulate her.

After a despair today she finally called the telephone company and requested immediate discontinuation of the service.

OFFICIAL CONGRATULATIONS
Berlin—(AP)—Theodore von Guerd, minister of transportation, today sent the ministry's felicitations to Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and his companions upon conclusion of their flight from Germany to New York. The Dornier and Dornier-Wal works also were congratulated.

IDENTIFY BODY FOUND BY U. S. COAST GUARD

New York—(AP)—A body found by the United States coast guard off Long Branch, N. J., was identified today as that of Perry Martin, 22, of Washington, dissipating reports that it might be that of Van Lear Black, missing Baltimore publisher.

Martin was drowned on Aug. 25, and the finding of his body had led to the circulation of rumors in the vicinity that coast guardsmen had recovered the body of Mr. Black, who fell from his yacht into the sea a week ago, off the New Jersey coast, and was lost.

Raratonga Is Near Scene Of Recent Pacific Rescue

Washington, D. C.—Raratonga, remote island of the South Seas, nearest land to the passenger steamer that was sent to the Pacific, is the subject of the following bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. But for the rescue by another liner, the 251 men, women, and children who were on the disabled ship would have had to make for Raratonga in open boats.

TYPICAL SOUTH SEA ISLAND
"Raratonga is the most fertile and most valuable of the Cook Islands," says the bulletin. "It might be considered the typical South Sea island of the volcanic kind—the sort of island that a connoisseur of islands would most like to see rising above his horizon. And it has the added attraction of possessing one of the finest tropical climates in the world. During the warm season (November 1 to 31, inclusive) Fahrenheit, and during the cool month, from 68 to 72. The abundant but not excessive rains fall mostly during the warm season and the island is well watered. A unique feature of the island is a spring that gushes from the top of a peak nearly 2,000 feet high, giving rise to the principal stream."

"The striking beauty of Raratonga arises from its sharp mountain pin-naclies, the tallest of which reach 2,000 feet above the sea, and the luxuriant tropical verdure that blankets them to the top. These stage-scenery-like peaks rise in the center of the island and from them the land slopes more gently to the sea, leaving a slightly elevated shelf. The houses of the villagers are built of coral whitewashed, with thatched roofs. Peeping from the rich green foliage, they add greatly to picturesque quality of the island as the observer steams along the coast."

PLANTATIONS RIM MOUNTAINS
"The island is six miles in length and slightly less in breadth. The level belt of land between the mountains and the sea is from one to three miles wide. This strip is very fertile and it flourishes coconut palms, coffee trees, and a variety of tropical fruits."

"Raratonga is on a direct line between New Zealand and Lower California, about 1,500 miles from the former. Since 1900 the island has been a possession of New Zealand along with the other Cook Islands and adjoining islets. Raratonga is about the same distance south of the equator as central Cuba and Honolulu are north of it. Some 9,000 people live on the Cook Islands, including 300 Europeans. About a third of the entire population lives on Raratonga. Its chief settlement, Avaruna, is the seat of government for the islands within a radius of 250 miles."

"The natives of Raratonga became Christianized in 1821. Avaruna now has a training school for missionaries maintained by the London Missionary society. In this little town of people is a hospital, a wireless station, and even a telephone system."

REYNOLDS IS KILLING CHANCES, REIS SAYS
Fond du Lac—(AP)—John W. Reynolds' race for attorney general is "certainly killing his chances for being elected" to the state supreme court next April, Alvin C. Reis, one of the men opposing him for re-election, said in a campaign address here last night.

"Almost a year ago John Reynolds told me in the presence of others and he also said to various people, that he would not run again for the attorney general ship because it was his ambition to be on the supreme court," Mr. Reis told his audience.

DEATH RAISES HAVOC IN SUPREME COURT; ELECTORATE IS BUSY

State Must Elect Justices Each April for Next Seven Years

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin electorate will elect justices to the supreme court each April during the next seven years because of the vacancies caused by death and resignation during Gov. Walter Kohler's term.

According to members of the bar, the state has never witnessed such a rapid turnover in the state's highest court as during the past two years. Four of the court's members have died and a fifth resigned because of ill health. Justice E. Ray Stevenson was the latest member of the court to die. The destruction of the court's personnel through death and resignation was believed not only unprecedented in the state but also in the nation.

Since assuming the executive's chair in January, 1929, Gov. Kohler has appointed three justices. The first was Justice Chester A. Fowler who succeeded the late Chief Justice Ad Vinje. Justice Oscar Fritz, Milwaukee, succeeded Christian Doerflinger who resigned while Edward T. Fairchild was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Franz Eschweiler. Since Eschweiler's death, Justice Charles Crowhart and Justice Stevens have died. The governor has yet to name their successors.

Members of the court appointed by the governor retain their seats only until an April election permits them to run for the balance of the unexpired term. The state constitution does not permit the election of more than one justice at each election.

This provision will force the successors of Justices Crowhart and Stevens to run for election before Justice Fairchild although his appointment was made several months ago. The successors of Justice Crowhart and Stevens, on the other hand, will not be obliged to run for the balance of the term because the appointments will carry through the end of the terms.

Justices are elected for 10-year terms. The schedule of supreme court elections for the next nine years is as follows:

1931—Chester A. Fowler for full term.
1932—Oscar Fritz for an unexpired term.
1933—Justice Crowhart's successor for a full term.
1934—Justice Stevens' successor for a full term.
1935—Edward Fairchild for a full term.
1936—Walter Owens for a full term.
1938—No election.
1939—Marvin B. Rosenberry for a full term.

REYNOLDS IS KILLING CHANCES, REIS SAYS

Fond du Lac—(AP)—John W. Reynolds' race for attorney general is "certainly killing his chances for being elected" to the state supreme court next April, Alvin C. Reis, one of the men opposing him for re-election, said in a campaign address here last night.

"Almost a year ago John Reynolds told me in the presence of others and he also said to various people, that he would not run again for the attorney general ship because it was his ambition to be on the supreme court," Mr. Reis told his audience.

Death Raises Havoc In Supreme Court; Electorate Is Busy

State Must Elect Justices Each April for Next Seven Years

Madison—(AP)—The Wisconsin electorate will elect justices to the supreme court each April during the next seven years because of the vacancies caused by death and resignation during Gov. Walter Kohler's term.

According to members of the bar, the state has never witnessed such a rapid turnover in the state's highest court as during the past two years. Four of the court's members have died and a fifth resigned because of ill health. Justice E. Ray Stevenson was the latest member of the court to die. The destruction of the court's personnel through death and resignation was believed not only unprecedented in the state but also in the nation.

Since assuming the executive's chair in January, 1929, Gov. Kohler has appointed three justices. The first was Justice Chester A. Fowler who succeeded the late Chief Justice Ad Vinje. Justice Oscar Fritz, Milwaukee, succeeded Christian Doerflinger who resigned while Edward T. Fairchild was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Franz Eschweiler. Since Eschweiler's death, Justice Charles Crowhart and Justice Stevens have died. The governor has yet to name their successors.

Members of the court appointed by the governor retain their seats only until an April election permits them to run for the balance of the unexpired term. The state constitution does not permit the election of more than one justice at each election.

This provision will force the successors of Justices Crowhart and Stevens to run for election before Justice Fairchild although his appointment was made several months ago. The successors of Justice Crowhart and Stevens, on the other hand, will not be obliged to run for the balance of the term because the appointments will carry through the end of the terms.

Justices are elected for 10-year terms. The schedule of supreme court elections for the next nine years is as follows:

1931—Chester A. Fowler for full term.
1932—Oscar Fritz for an unexpired term.
1933—Justice Crowhart's successor for a full term.
1934—Justice Stevens' successor for a full term.
1935—Edward Fairchild for a full term.
1936—Walter Owens for a full term.
1938—No election.
1939—Marvin B. Rosenberry for a full term.

RAILROAD GAMBLE IN CANADA NEARS CLIMAX RAPIDLY

People Will Know in Few Months Whether Venture Will Be Successful

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Montreal—The most important railroad gamble of the day is rapidly approaching its climax of success or failure. Within a few months, with the opening of the new line to Hudson Bay, the people of Canada will know whether they have won or lost the $45,000,000 that they have staked upon the possibility of commercial transportation through the Arctic circle.

Already the 511 miles of steel, which leaves the transcontinental line of the Canadian National railway at Maclevey, Saskatchewan, have reached Fort Churchill, the Hudson bay terminus. During the present summer, rock ballasting has been undertaken along the last 130 miles of the route, which now is ready to handle all classes of freight or grain traffic.

Fort Churchill itself has become a thriving town of several hundred. Work is being rushed on a 2,000,000 bushel grain elevator, for use as soon as traffic commences. And under construction are dock facilities, bridges, railway yards and houses and a plant to provide a water supply.

QUIET ACTIVITY
All of this activity is proceeding without the accompaniment of real estate boom, because the government foresight in appropriating for the crown all available townsite property. This is administered under Manitoba government auspices.

In all, the government has spent about $45,000,000 on the project. The largest item has been construction of the railroad itself, which has cost about $33,000,000. The terminal work at Fort Churchill has cost about $8,000,000. Surveys absorbed about $1,500,000 and some $5,000,000 was spent upon Fort Nelson, a projected terminus which later was abandoned in favor of Fort Churchill.

This expenditure could better be understood if the enterprise were not perhaps the most bitterly debated issue in Canadian politics. There never has been unanimity in favor of the feasibility of Hudson's bay as a grain route. In fact, through the early stages of the venture, the weight of expert testimony seemed to lie against it and only the determination of the farmers of the three prairie provinces prevented the undertaking from premature demise.

Why has the route been persisted in, often against the advice of engineering and transportation experts? Politically because the government had to command a western following. This pressure was responsible for commencement of the line in 1910 by a conservative government and for its practical completion today. Against it has been urged the claim that the route would be open for only a few weeks each year, that the road would be so costly that grain traffic could not pay overhead charges.

Recent investigations give the route somewhat brighter prospects. It is now believed that Hudson's bay can be navigated for at least four and possibly five months of each year. And there seems to be some prospect of return freight for the cars traveling southward. Fort Churchill is believed to possess decided possibilities as a port of entry for goods from Britain designed for western Canada.

Fundamentally the route's attraction is the saving in distance it promises the western grain shipper. The route cuts off 297 miles from the present rail haul and 1,183 miles from the present water haul, the comparison being based upon shipments from Fort Arthur and Fort William. In addition the shipper is saved the cost of transshipment from the Great Lakes to ocean steamers.

Early spring of next year is expected to see the railway in full operation with ocean terminal facilities in readiness to handle next year's grain crop.

WATER CONNECTIONS MUST BE INSTALLED

Owners of property on N. Clark-st. from Wisconsin-ave. to Parkway-bld. River-dr. and Verbrick-st. have been notified to have all water, sewer and water connections installed within the next 30 days. These streets are to be paved in 1931 and the installation of underground pipes before paving begins will eliminate any future tearing up of the streets.

CHINESE PLANES DROP BOMBS
Peiping, China—(AP)—Two Nationalist airplanes flying from Si-ma-fu dropped six bombs in the Tartar city and the forbidden city this morning. Only one bomb exploded, inside the Chienmen gate. No casualties resulted and there was no sign of panic among the Peiping inhabitants.

Union Vets In Parade In Cincinnati

Cincinnati, O.—(AP)—The time? strated ranks of the Grand Army of the Republic, faltering but indomitable, swung into parade once more today.

Although wearied by advancing years, their steps lagging and backs bent, a thousand survivors of the Union's army of '65 proudly insisted they would march the entire distance. Automobiles were assigned another 1,000, and it was estimated 500 more, too feeble even to ride, would stand by to wave greetings.

The parade down gaily and elaborately decorated streets was the climax of the 64th annual encampment of the G. A. R.

Precautions were taken to be in readiness to care for those upon whom the burden was too great. Red Cross and relief stations were established all along the route to care for those "falling by the wayside" from weakness or illness. Boy scouts stood by to assist.

The G. A. R. parade is strictly an affair of the veterans. None of the affiliated organizations with the exception of the Sons of Union Veterans, has any part, the sons serving only as escorts.

Aside from the parade, today was an important one otherwise. The schedule called for the sixty-fourth annual business session, devoted to hearing nominations for officers, invitations for next year's encampment and the annual reports of officers.

SAMP BACK ON START ATTACK ON LEVITAN

Neillsville—(AP)—While Edward J. Samp, candidate for the Republican nomination of state treasurer, was challenging a statement of Solomon Levitan, his opponent, made in 1922, concerning holding offices to long, Bert E. Guber, Samp's campaign secretary was predicting his candidate's victory in the primary Sept. 16.

"We are confident of Samp's nomination," Mr. Guber said here today, "for every mail brings in expressions of additional support from Progressive leaders throughout the state who have voted for Mr. Samp's opponent in previous campaigns and who are not beginning to appreciate the significance of the selfish motives which prompt the present state treasurer to seek re-election."

Bankers Outline Plan For Relief In Drought Areas

HOLD CONFAB WITH HYDE ON THEIR REPORT

Group Evolves Plan After Session With President on Credit Outlook

Washington—(AP)—The financial representatives of 15 states, meeting today with Secretary Hyde to complete drought relief plans, had before them the results of an overnight study by three leading bankers.

Melvin A. Traylor of Chicago, Nicholas Dosker of Louisville and Morton Prentiss of Baltimore, were appointed at a conference yesterday with President Hoover to prepare recommendations for utilizing available financing agencies. Their work was based on a broad plan of setting up state and local credit corporations to act as intermediaries in handling loans to farmers of the affected regions.

The banker members of the relief committees from drought states, called in yesterday by the president also for an exhaustive survey of the resources which the federal farm loan board, the farm board, the department of agriculture and the federal reserve board could throw into the relief campaign. The work of these agencies was linked through a coordinating committee which will include in its work supervision of transportation facilities, marketing and crop production.

The task of the bankers today was to fill in the general plan with working details, applicable to each local condition. After yesterday's session, the bankers will lay out the local character of the relief needed, and conviction was expressed that local agencies could best deal with the problem.

Secretary Hyde told the bankers at the White House that relief machinery already was functioning. A total of 665 carloads of feed and other necessities have been shipped to drought states at the low emergency rates placed in force by the railroad. The shipments have gone principally to West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Ohio.

RELIEF IN 3 STATES

Washington—(AP)—The weather bureau today said the drought in Kansas, Nebraska and South Dakota has been "effectively broken" as a result of rains during the last week and that the soil now is generally in good condition.

Over the rest of the drought area, however, insufficient rains were reported.

Referring to corn, the bureau said that as a whole "August rains have afforded improvement only in limited areas."

In some important producing sections there was slight relief, the bulletin added, "and in others the crop has continued to suffer for moisture, while in many places, especially in the southern half of the belt, the bulk was too far gone to materially benefit."

"In fact, the most unfavorable weather for corn this year, when its critical stage of growth is considered, covered the last half of July and nearly the first half of August, the deterioration being especially rapid the first half of August."

In the great plains, states from northern Kansas to South Dakota, the corn crop was materially benefited by recent rains, and conditions in some of the northeastern states show improvement, the bureau said. In the central valley, localities have improved but no general benefit to the corn crop is apparent.

In addition, from Appleton merchants asking for the business routing of the highway which now proceeds over Memorial-dr, Richmond-st and Wisconsin-ave came before the common council weeks ago, but because the state insists upon marking new routes the matter has been delayed.

CANADIAN AREA IS INCREASING YEARLY

Exploration Parties of Dominion Returning With Newly Mapped Regions

Ottawa, Ont.—(AP)—Canada's area grows greater each year. Every fall when exploration parties of the dominion government emerge from the far north they bring word of newly mapped and charted coast lines, new islands plotted in the Arctic archipelago and new areas added to the map of Canada.

In a few short weeks these parties will be reporting to Ottawa. Their work, hampered by the short summer, but slowly and surely the far north is being mastered.

The airplane has solved many problems for explorers. Major L. T. Burwash, most famous of Canadian Arctic men, now is bound by air on a mapping trip to King William's Land which was quite impossible by other means of travel. He hopes to unravel much of the mystery around the disappearance of Sir John Franklin and his men about 60 years ago.

He will take a census of the Eskimo population in some sections of the Arctic and will supervise prospecting on the Coppermine river. This area was thrown open for prospecting this year and is believed by some to hold the secret of legendary copper deposits referred to by Indians and Eskimos for many years.

GERMAN DICTATOR SEEN AS LION IN LAMB'S CLOTHING

Unimpressive Mien of Heinrich Bruening Belies Iron-handed Methods

Berlin—Heinrich Bruening, virtual dictator of Germany under the 30-day suspension of the Reichstag, is possessed of a tiny voice, small, white hands, a self-effacing manner and an amiable disposition.

But Chancellor Bruening's unimpressive appearance belies his actions. He dared to do that which no German statesman had done since the time of the indomitable "Iron Chancellor," Prince von Bismarck.

A few weeks ago the chancellor needed money to pay the debt to the allies, among other things. When the Reichstag refused to vote the money, Bruening placed his rejected budget bill before President Paul von Hindenburg in the form of a decree and the president signed it, dissolving the Reichstag and turning the government into a virtual dictatorship.

Chancellor Bruening is a strange mixture of lion and lamb. He always dresses in black and no one has ever seen him at work in anything but his black sack-suit, even on the hottest days of summer.

When Bruening delivers an address, his voice is scarcely audible, and yet it conveys more meaning than the roar of a dozen party orators of the blustering type.

Bachelor, scholar and one-time machine gunner, Bruening was scarcely known in the realm of statesmanship until he forged upward a scant year ago in the Catholic Centre party and finally became its leader.

His capacities were well known long before that by the soldiers who were at his side on the western front of the World War, when he was steadily engaged with a division of machine gun sharpshooters. He still carries marks of his wounds and won the Iron Cross for his bravery.

Bruening has enjoyed an unusual education. He spent his early school days in Munster, his birthplace, and studied next at the universities in Munich, Bonn and Strassburg, specializing in history, philosophy and sociology. After obtaining degrees at these universities, he toured France and England, studying the economic life, and returned to Germany and took a degree in economics.

Thus equipped, he accepted a post in the Prussian public works department and later became an official of the German National Industrial Council.

After election to the Reichstag in 1924, his capacity for work and his keen insight into financial problems won him leadership. He became the official leader of the Catholic Centre party in December of 1929.

He also has been active in the field of foreign politics.

He is 45.

Germany's dictatorship, which lasts until September, brings to mind the fact that Spain, Italy and Russia—all the great powers of Europe except England and France—are under some form of dictatorship.

Of South America's three big powers, Argentina and Chile have dictators, while Brazil is ruled by a "coffee oligarchy."

Turkey, the strongest nation of the Near East, has a dictator, Kemal Pasha.

And in Africa, the King of Egypt and the Emperor of Abyssinia, are dictators.

CLAIM OSHKOSH BOYS STOLE FROM STORES

GOT LICENSE TO WED DETROIT GIRL BUT NOT HER CONSENT

Detroit—(AP)—Matilda is looking for the presumptuous youth who applied for a license to marry her without bothering to reach an agreement with the party of the second part.

When Miss Matilda Zebarah, 21, returned home from her vacation in Chicago, she found her mother weeping. "Why did you do it, honey? You didn't have to run away," sobbed Mrs. Zebarah.

"Do what? Run where?"

They showed her a newspaper clipping listing Matilda and a Mr. Theodore E. Laskey, 21, as applicants for a marriage license, leading to the belief that Matilda had eloped during her vacation.

Miss Zebarah appeared forthwith at the county building to demand that the license clerk tear up the application.

"I'll give Ted Laskey a piece of my mind when I catch him," said Matilda.

FINAL RITES FOR JUSTICE STEVENS HELD AT MADISON

Simplicity Marks Private Services at Residence in Nakoma

Madison—(AP)—Funeral services for Justice E. Ray Stevens, 33rd justice of the state supreme court, who died Monday, were conducted at his home here this morning. Burial was in Forest Hill cemetery.

The same simplicity and lack of pretentiousness that characterized the justice's public life marked the last rites. Only a few personal friends and members of his family were the guests at the home.

When the private services were conducted, flowers were omitted at the request of Mrs. Stevens.

The reputation of being a liberal mind on the bench which Justice Stevens gained during his long public service was the theme used by the Rev. Harland C. Logan, pastor of First Methodist church, who preached the Episcopal burial service in the absence of the regular rector.

There was a man who loved life, not for the mere existence, but for the opportunity which it offered for service to his fellow men and his state," Dr. Logan said. "He loved this life for the friendships which it gave him. He abhorred the materialistic; he gave himself wholly to unselfish service according to the light that came to him."

Gov. Walter Kohler was among those who attended the services.

Six friends and associates of the justice were active pallbearers. They were Judge A. C. Hoppmann, C. E. Buell, Madison attorney; Alfred T. Rogers, Madison attorney; Dean H. L. Russell of the University of Wisconsin; C. E. Lester, state librarian; and Paul M. Stark, Madison realtor.

Honorary pallbearers were Justice Stevens' associates on the supreme court—Chief Justice Marvin B. Rosenberry, Justices Walter Owen, Oscar Fritz, Chester Fowler, Edward Fairchild and former Justices Christian Doerflinger and Burr Jones.

Justice Stevens was the third member of the supreme court to be borne to Forest Hill cemetery in the past two years. Chief Justice A. J. Vinje and Justices Crownhart and Franz Eschweiler preceded Justice Stevens in death, and burial of the former two was in Madison.

OIL PRODUCTION SHOWS DECREASE THROUGHOUT U. S.

Cut Surplus Despite Discovery of New Resources in Country

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Washington—The program for curtailing oil production, sponsored first by the government as a conservation measure and begun later by the oil industry with co-operation of various states, is showing some results.

Instead of increasing as in previous years, oil production has been cut down. There was an increase from 301,000,000 barrels in 1928 to 306,000,000 barrels in 1929, but production for the first six months of 1930 was only 455,000,000 as compared with 488,000,000 in the first half of 1929.

Imports of crude oil fell off from 44,000,000 barrels to 31,000,000 barrels in the same period, but there was a corresponding increase in importation of refined products—mostly gasoline—so all that means is that the biggest American oil companies are doing more of their refining in the countries where they get their oil.

The significant point seems to be that whole new resources have been discovered and the amount of "shut-in" oil has been at a new high peak, the amount of oil taken from the ground has nevertheless been diminished. The producers of crude have undertaken, with considerable success, to keep their output within the limit of actual demands. Competition in drilling as well as in production has been considerably cut down.

OIL BOARD PLEADED

The Federal Oil Conservation Board pointed the way for this achievement and is now pleased with the voluntary curbing of oil production by the industry and state commissions. Crude oil is all converted into something else; no consumer buys it. Oil companies figure out their refinery demands and business requirements at the first of the year and the idea has been to make production fit those figures.

Geologists have given up making estimates of the supply of oil which the country may depend upon underground. In the past 10 years every such estimate has had to be revised as too conservative. New and better methods of geological exploration, discovery of deeper prolific sands, improved operating methods and successful rejuvenation of partially depleted fields have all widened the conception of how much oil there may be to be taken out.

The Federal Oil Conservation Board still insists, however, that since oil is an irreplaceable natural product the oil resources of oil are limited. In its recent and fourth report it pointed out that increased production was not an index of the remaining reserves but a record of depletion and a warning of impaired resources.

GOVERNMENT MUST HELP

The government, it said, must, in providing for national defense and promoting general welfare, cooperate to protect the newly discovered reserves and those previously known from dangerous and too rapid depletion.

"Almost incredible increases in the rate of production have been matched by increasing consumption and no one knows how long the supply will keep pace with demand. And the Oil Board said: 'Even the most generous estimates place the data at which our oil reserves will be depleted, under present rates of consumption, in the comparatively near future.'"

The board's purpose, it pointed out, was to delay the coming of the day when increasing shortage of crude oil will cause radical advance in the price of gasoline and other refinery products.

The big hope of producing a gasoline substitute is now seen in the new hydrogenation process which makes a motor fuel out of hydrogen and carbon. A plant using this process has been in operation nearly two years in Louisiana, and nearly three more are under construction. Cost of production of this new motor fuel on a large scale has not yet been determined, but all experts in the petroleum field are intensely interested.

Slickers, umbrellas, and rubbers will be in order during the next 24 hours, if predictions of the weather bureau materialize.

Blease Leading In Senate Contest In South Carolina

his fellow townsman, Solicitor Ibra C. Blackwood of Spartanburg, who polled 31,889 votes.

Three members of congress who had opposition were apparently renominated on the basis of partial unofficial returns. In the second district, Representative Butler B. Hare leads 5,007 votes to 1,424 for Claude Aman of Beaufort, who campaigned as a "wringing wet" and 2,787 for John F. Williams, state senator from Aiken.

Representative W. F. Severson of the Fifth district had 18,708 votes against 9,963 for Zeb Vance Davidson of Chester. In the Seventh, Representative Fulmer rolled up an overwhelming majority over Dr. R. Sturkie. The vote was: Fulmer 15,810; Sturkie 4,955.

San Francisco—(AP)—The governorship of California seemed almost within the reach of James Rolph Jr. San Francisco's picturesque mayor, as returns from the state primary paled up an evergrowing lead in his favor today.

Rolph, who wears high boots instead of ordinary shoes and who never appears in public without a boutonniere, was leading Gov. C. C. Young and Byron Fitts, district attorney of Los Angeles-co., by a liberal margin when two-thirds of the vote for the Republican nomination for governor had been tabulated. The Republican nomination is considered tantamount to election.

Returns from 7,156 out of 10,225 precincts in the stage gave Rolph 277,748; Young 235,697, and Fitts 209,145.

Rolph carried his own city by a surprising majority, polling 13,666 against 39,178 for Young, and 6,715 for Fitts. Despite the refusal of both Young and Fitts to concede defeat, Rolph supporters asserted his lead over Young in the south would carry him to victory.

Milton K. Young, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination for governor and who ran also on the Republican ticket, will oppose the Republican ticket in the November election. Milton K. Young's appearance on the Republican ticket was criticized by Governor Young's supporters as a move to confuse the Republican voters. Milton Young polled 22,583 as a Democrat and 23,705 as a Republican.

DISCUSS DRY ISSUE

Although Rolph did not raise the prohibition question, both Fitts and Young pointed to the San Francisco mayor's alleged wet tendencies in their pre-election drives. Young and Fitts received the informal support of prohibition organization. The "Liberal" element picked Rolph as its champion as far as the wet and dry question went.

Rolph has been mayor of San Francisco for nearly 20 years. He is a "native son." Governor Young is a native of New Hampshire and Fitts came from Texas.

Rolph's nomination would mean virtually defeat for the political faction headed by former Gov. F. W. Richardson and Roy Benjamin, San Francisco lawyer. This faction, long a power in state politics, backed Fitts. The mayor stressed his alleged freedom from "bosses" as a campaign argument.

The prohibition issue thrust itself into the Republican race for the lieutenant governorship designation with State Senator Tallant Tubbs of San Francisco, a wet leading a field of five. Tubbs favors modification of the prohibition laws.

All eleven of California's congressmen were seeking reelection and all seemed assured of victory. Only three faced opposition.

Playground Notes

Appleton playgrounds ended their most successful season on Saturday with the annual hobby and pet show and stunt night program Friday.

During the ten week period 91,615 people visited the various playgrounds either to watch the play or to watch the games of the children or adults. This figure exceeds last season's attendance by 16,000 which shows that the playgrounds are becoming an institution with citizens of Appleton. This enthusiasm on the part of the children and adults of Appleton is noteworthy when one considers the fact that the play program was restricted to a certain degree this season due to a limited budget in accordance with the city council's conservation program in all city departments.

A serious effort was made this season by those directly in charge of the program not only to provide ample facilities and opportunities for play but to promote sportsmanship and other qualities of good conduct among those children and adults taking part in play on the grounds.

The municipal swimming pool has been a very popular place during the summer months with an average daily attendance near the thousand mark. Much promotional work was done at the pool this season through instruction classes to teach beginners to swim properly. By means of swimming efficiency tests and swimming meets those advanced in swimming were given a chance to win individual honors.

Champions and championship teams in the city playground competition for this season are as follows:

CHECKERS

NEGRO GETS PRIVATE PULLMAN CAR RIDE BY CLEVER SCHEME

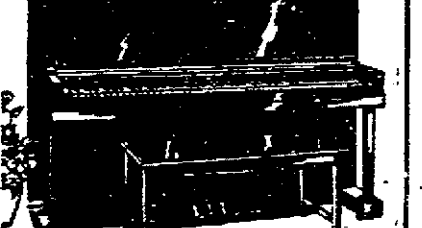

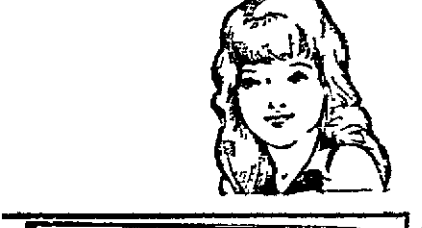

St. Louis—(AP)—Posing as a Pullman porter, a Negro rode from Memphis to St. Louis as the sole occupant of a Pullman attached to an Illinois Central train yesterday.

Yesterday morning a man who is supposed to be the Negro, called the Illinois Central in Memphis.

This is the assistant superintendent of the Pullman company," he said. "I want the 'Kescog' attached to Train 126. It will lead-head to St. Louis and a porter will go along."

The car was coupled to the train. A Negro who represented himself as a porter got aboard, rode to St. Louis and left the train at Union station before his deception had been discovered.

PACKERS LARGEST LIVESTOCK BUYERS

62 Per Cent of Calves, 43 Per Cent of Cattle Purchased in State

Madison —(P)—The majority of livestock sold by Wisconsin producers is purchased by stockyards and packers in the state, according to statistics compiled by the livestock reporting service of the Wisconsin Department of Agriculture and announced here today.

Sixty two per cent of the calves are purchased in the state as well as 43 per cent of the cattle, 23 per cent of the sheep and 59 per cent of the hogs.

The marketing volume of all classes of Wisconsin livestock except sheep fell during 1935 as compared to 1934 while it was less than the 10-year average of 1926-1935. Calf shipments were two per cent less than in 1935 and slightly under the 10-year average while cattle shipments were down 21 per cent from marketings of last year and eight per cent below the 10-year average.

The volume of hog shipments in 1935 represented a five per cent decrease from that of 1934 and the same proportion less than the 10-year average. Sheep gained in marketings by eight per cent over 1935 and 19 per cent over 10-year average.

April, 1935 was the banner month in the shipping of calves. Late summer and fall months showed only light movement. Forty-two per cent of the cattle shipments were made between September and December while two-thirds of the sheep and hogs last year were marketed during the fall and early winter months.

Chicago packers and stockyards, the largest single outside market for Wisconsin livestock, purchased 213,296 head of cattle, or 28 per cent of the total marketings of calves. Fifty-nine per cent of the sheep, 25 per cent of the hogs and 40 per cent of the cattle went to Chicago. South St. Paul ranks next as an outside market but gets only a small proportion of the shipments. Other important outside points are Newport, Winona, Duluth, Jersey City, Buffalo, New York and Pittsburgh.

INCOME TAX DISCUSSION
The federal government finishes the fiscal year 1930 with an increase in internal revenue receipts of $100,000,000. Most of the gain was in income taxes and the showing is made despite the fact that the one per cent tax reduction voted by congress last December affected the quarterly payment of taxes in March and June of the present calendar year. The reduction in income taxes was made for one year only so that if it is to be continued it will require action by congress at the next session. Naturally speculation centers on the question whether the reduction will be continued another year. Pessimistic forecasts were made early last week by treasury experts, who estimated that a deficit was in prospect if the present rates were preserved. These were later discounted by President Hoover who at the close of the week stated he did not anticipate a deficit and that the outlook was good for retaining the present one per cent reduction in income taxes. Mr. Mellon, with usual caution, has not committed himself.

There is reason to believe that this discussion of the income tax from four to five months before congress will be in a position to pass on the matter is chiefly political. No one can tell at this time, not even the experts, what treasury receipts will be for the fiscal year 1931. Income taxes payable the last two quarters will be less than those payable in September and December. The depression of 1930, to say nothing of stock losses, would seem to make this certain. In addition there has been a heavy falling off in foreign trade, with a reduction in imports corresponding to that of exports, which must decrease revenue from this source. Of course business may boom or materially improve this fall, and foreign commerce may do the same, but nothing is certain. One man's guess is as good as another. Everything depends on what happens the remaining four months of the calendar year 1930.

Naturally the Republicans wish to create a favorable sentiment as to business revival, as well as to causes, such as lowered tax rates, which may help to bring it about. Discussion of income tax rates applicable to 1930 is somewhat premature, no matter what the motives behind them. About the only reason we can see for it is the election in November.

A CINDERELLA RETURNS

A little more than a year ago the world wondered why one of its favorite Cinderellas had decided to go home from the ball. It was a long, long time until the clock would strike twelve. The crystal slipper fitted perfectly, and all the silken ladies and gay-gallants were bowing graciously.

But Marion Talley removed the shining gowns, slipped off the beads and bracelets that she had worn at the ball, and put on a sunbonnet. She listened to the last applause from the glittering horseshoe. She received her last red roses. She threw a kiss at the charmed circle. The stage lights winked their golden eyes and went out. The velvet curtains rustled together.

Marion was tired of glamour, so she was going away. Going out to Kansas to raise wheat and corn. She had sung for a farm and now she was happy.

But now Marion is back in New York again for a little. She has returned to make phonograph records. She says that it is hot in Kansas, the corn is only fair . . . that she won't say that she will come back to the opera if the urge grows strong enough.

After all, it is a far, far cry from fields of sun-baked corn to the fantasy and romance of the opera stage where life dances along to a tragic drama or a laughing fantasy and the actress plays on pulsing, blood-red hearts. There is a long road winding from the black and white ladders of song down a country road where farmers pray for rain.

Everyone wondered why Marion Talley stepped out of the storybook and closed its silver covers. After the discouragement which has been the portion of farmers this year, no one will censure Marion Talley if she decides to go back to the ball, one glass slipper in her pocket, hoping that the music masters still hold its mate against the time when she returns.

A HERO GOES WEST

Another good soldier has gone West. He has found his regiment and sits contentedly in some far land where barbed wire, gas, and bursting shells are no longer a tortured memory.

Old Cap or Captain, as he was called, was a wire-haired Griffon, who served with the French Red Cross, with distinction, during the World War. It was his task to find the wounded men who lay in the tangled barbed wire and shell holes. Old Cap never faltered. Through the flames, on where the gas clouds rolled, a mask over his nose and eyes, he ran.

Somehow he knew that it was duty. There were men, his comrades in the army, who needed help. And always he came.

"Cap will find me," one soldier in his outfit would murmur to another. "Don't worry. He'll be along 'most any minute."

All through the weary years Cap performed his duty. If he was scared, nobody ever knew it. His bright eyes would listen carefully to orders and he would obey them faithfully.

Then the war ended. An American soldier brought the dog home. Something must have told his heart that war was over. That his services were no longer required along the barbed wire.

When he had been needed he had never hesitated to go. Now that he wasn't, he stayed away from all wire fences. Nothing could coax him near. He remembered the sharp, sudden hail . . . the blood . . . the moans . . . black nights with mad red fire. The other day he died at Ware, Mass., at the ripe age of 15 years.

There is a lesson in the life of the soldier-dog who has passed through the western gates. He was never afraid to risk his life as long as he could be of service. But when he knew that he couldn't, he calmly refused to take an unnecessary risk.

Some of the gay flirtations with death today might end more happily if we used the same dog sense.

BRIAND SATISFIED

Aristide Briand, French foreign minister, has been going over the replies received from the 26 nations invited by him to form a "United States of Europe." Although the replies differ much in content and temper, he professes himself satisfied and hopeful. Some of the nations, taking a leaf out of the American book of diplomacy, suggest joining with reservations. But Briand said that he does not find any of the proposed reservations "vitiat-ing." He is going to bring the subject before the League of Nations assembly at Geneva in September, for open debate. Briand is fortunate in one respect, at least. He has no United States senate to contend with in this undertaking.

PREPARING FOR SCHOOL

Now, while there is yet comfortable time, take the children to the dentist. Take them to the oculist while you are about it, and let the family doctor come once and get a good look at them. Then when the first of September comes around with school and new books and new clothes and things, and a hint of fuel to buy in the offing, the children's physical affairs will be off your mind. When the child's body is in good condition from sun and play, his teeth attended to, his eyes fitted if they need it, any other defects on the way to cure, his school year will be far happier and more successful than if he is in discomfort of some sort.

By decomposing natural gas at high temperatures and recombining its constituents, products ranging from artificial rubber, anaesthetics and motor fuel, to dyes and explosives, are being obtained.

Many botanists regard a bald cypress tree in Santa Maria del Tula, Mexico, as the oldest living tree in the world. It is probably from 4,000 to 6,000 years of age.

LOOKS LIKE Helen Kane is gonna be out the fifty thousand bucks she invested on a fellow's advice . . . the fellow went bankrupt . . . it's gonna take a lot of boob-boop-a-doops to earn the fifty grand back . . . saw a plump, middle aged woman on College avenue 't'other day in yellow flowered beach pajamas . . . probably a tourist . . . she looked like somebody had made an awful mistake . . . beach pajamas are alright . . . on SOME people . . . California will be boasting again . . . a two year old California baby rode a mile on the bumper of a car . . . wasn't hurt a bit . . .

Not all of the east is civilized. In Pennsylvania, a four foot black snake stole a pound of bacon from a kitchen table. We've seen 'em bigger than that in them there parts. Cute little things, too.

"MRS. HILL SHOOT'S BIRDIES" (headline.) Humph, headline writers are getting coy.

S'funny, but not one member of the league-leading Cubs is up among the big six of batting.

We read where an old church is to be torn down to make way for a miniature golf course. Well, they hold religious services on them every night. Sure the kind little boy told his mother about when he saw the brick hit the man on the head. "Did he swear, dear?" asked the mother anxiously. "Naw, he just sat down on the sidewalk and talked to God."

FEMINIST DEPARTMENT

What, oh what has happened to Mr. Ferguson down in Texas? Here, she was supposed to be elected or nominated to the governorship of Texas. (When you're a Democrat down there it doesn't make much difference.) Well, she wasn't, despite a great campaign of sentimentalism which failed to win the voters for a change. If H. L. Mencken isn't too busy planning gas heaters for his new home, and getting himself convinced of the advisability of marriage, we hope he'll note.

Mae West, she of Diamond Lil fame, has introduced a new play to Chicago. It's called "Sex." It's reported to be very punk.

At least the critics are panning the daylight out of it and her. Probably the public likes it.

HEGEL'S BIRTH
On August 27, 1770, George Hegel, one of the greatest German philosophers, was born at Stuttgart, Germany.

His associations at the University of Tubingen with Schelling, the philosopher, had a great intellectual influence on him. When he finished college Hegel became a tutor in Switzerland and then an instructor of philosophy at the University of Jena.

In 1831, after he had published his Encyclopedia of Philosophical Sciences, he accepted the chair of philosophy at the University of Berlin where his lectures attracted hearers from all ranks and professions. Because he ardently defended existing political institutions, he rose to great political influence. The noted aphorism in which he summed up his teaching, "The rational is the actual, and the actual is the rational," was taken to imply that the Prussian organization was the perfection of reason and freedom.

Hegel's system, which is usually termed the "philosophy of the absolute," falls into three departments: logic, or the science of thought in its pure unity with itself; the philosophy of nature, in which the ideal principle is shown to underlie even the material world; and the philosophy of spirit.

IT IS LIKE TAKING CANDY
AWAY FROM THE BABY
Animadversions on "nervousness" and "auto-intoxication" recently published in this column have brought the customary storm of reproachful letters from readers who dislike to learn the truth about such things. It is notable that a considerable share of these letters from victims of the "auto-intoxication" obsession are sarcastic. I mean sarcastic. How come, they ask, that I claim, as they say, that there is no such thing as auto-intoxication, and notwithstanding that many eminent medical authorities recognize it as a common condition calling for relief?

In all seriousness let me explain that I am a medical authority, even an eminent one, when my idea or teaching or opinion about anything happens to coincide with the idea the chap quoting me wishes to propagate. Indeed, several people or firms to whom I have never paid a penny and from whom I have never received a fee or a job or anything have cited me as an eminent or well known authority. But let that pass. This auto-intoxication business is still before the meeting.

I am aware that Sir Arbuthnot Lane has cherished and I suppose still does work off on his patrons, a theory that all sorts of ailments are due to auto-intoxication, and this notion is always plausible to the layman with his superficial or physiologic. In spite of the deplorable antics of Lane and the various charlatans or fanatics who profit personally in the war or another: from exploiting the ideas Lane has espoused, I am sure it is quite safe for me to challenge any reputable physician to justify a diagnosis of "auto-intoxication" in any actual case by explaining or demonstrating how it is brought about or how he detects it. Good, honest doctors may have played with the theory of auto-intoxication in years past. I am fairly familiar with contemporaneous medical and health literature and I believe there is no chance that any educated physician will accept this challenge.

Some one sent in a clipping of an article about hives by a presumably educated physician. In the article this doctor says "toxic poisons are set up in the body by waste materials in the intestines." That is clear cut enough. But it is ridiculous and betrays the incompetence of the author to discuss such a subject. Even a reasonable familiarity with a dictionary would tell the doctor that all poisons are toxic or rather that toxic means poisonous. It would probably give the doctor a headache to try to find any scientific evidence to bolster up his funny notion that waste material in the intestine becomes poisonous in some inscrutable way. Probably he didn't mean just what he said: such authorities seldom do know just what they are trying to say.

In another clipping, this one, I think, from a Frank quack doctor pamphlet, I learn that the great Pasteur was all mixed up. This quack says: "When there is retention of food in the stomach for too long a time, fermentation takes place, in which event bacteria are formed. . . . Poor Pasteur! thought the bacteria were the cause or producers of the fermentation. Of course this is an extreme example, from a fortnight quack booklet. But it is no more absurd, to my mind, than any of the odd arguments I have heard made in support of the "auto-intoxication" obsession.

I note in ——— magazine a statement that vinegar retards salivary digestion. In your opinion is this true, and will lemon juice have the same effect? (K. L. C.)
Answer—As a matter of fact the assertion was made. I believe, by a person employed by certain commercial interests. In my opinion it is not true, or even if it does retard salivary digestion what of it? For some purpose where vinegar is used lemon juice serves well enough. But I prefer vinegar on my beans, and I don't care who says it will retard

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran
THE Tynmites spent most of the day in helping stack big loads of hay. When night time came the Travel Man said, "Say, I have a plan. Instead of back in our hotel, I think it really would be swell to sleep up in the hay stacks. I feel fairly sure we can."

"A good idea," Scouty cried. "At least the asking can be tried." Of course the peasant said, "Why, sure! There's room enough for all." Scouty climbed up there, high off the ground. I hope you all sleep good and sound. Then, when the sun comes up at dawn, I'll give you all a call."

The Travel Man said, "Thank you much! And I'll make sure the legs don't touch a single thing in your big barn. I know they'll all mind me." The driver of their big machine smiled broadly and he seemed real keen when he was asked to join them. "Sure!" he shouted. "That suits me!"

So, up into the hay they went, with every single one intent on getting heaps and heaps of sleep, so they would all feel great. The Travel Man said, "You all know that real makes little fellows grow. Let's drift right into slumberland. It's getting pretty late."

At dawn they all were up again. They had a dandy breakfast. Then they started back to Athens in their rented touring car. At noon they jumped out to the ground to walk some more and look around. Poor Scouty said, "Let's walk real slow. I can't go very fast."

While strolling down one small side street, who should the Tynmites chance to meet but quite a strange old vendor who sold baskets, big and small. He led a mule that tramped along. Said Scouty, "Gee, that mule is strong. The baskets are piled on its back and it doesn't care at all."

(The Tynmites meet some Boy Scouts in the next story.)

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSECK
New York — Gilda Gray has just one aim in life—and that is to dance.

That and to make talking pictures in which she can play a dignified role. She wants very much to overcome the audience belief that she is a tough girl.

Her real name was Marianna Milchalska and she was born in Krakow of Polish peasants. Sophie Tucker suggested the name Gilda Gray.

Gilda came to this country at the age of eight, first living at Bayonne, N. J., then going to Cudahy, Wis., a suburb of Milwaukee, where her father was laborer in the packing plants. Her parents still live there in a house Gilda bought them.

CABARET GIRL
It was in a Milwaukee cabaret where her first husband, named Godetsky, played the violin that Gilda first danced. Later she got a job in a south side cabaret in Chicago, where, Ed Boas, her second husband, discovered her.

Often infatuated, but never in love, she says she is through with marriage.

She went to parochial school with Lenore Uric, but never took a dancing lesson. She explains the shimmy by saying she just happened to do it one night in Chicago.

She has a 17-year-old son in St. John's Military academy at Delaware, Wis.

While she was dancing in New York several years ago, a young saxophone player in the orchestra sang so low she told him to "go get a megaphone." He did. He was Rudy Vallee.

MUSIC MOVES HER
Beautiful music makes Gilda cry and she likes lots of violins. She is five feet, four inches tall, weighs 123 pounds, is a natural blond, has dimpled knees and wears size 34 AA shoes.

Next to people who are not natural, she dislikes practical jokers most. She likes sweeties, people who are on the level and pretty clothes.

She wears a diamond and platinum anklet, even around the house, but no other jewels. She seldom wears evening gowns and never has worn a short skirt offstage.

She prefers heavy perfumes—because they effect her when she dances—the novels of E. Phillips Oppenheim and serious plays like "George Arliss and Holroyd."

George Arliss is the only actor who thrills her. She does not care for musical comedies, never has owned an umbrella, and has ridden in a subway only once.

She went to Coney Island for the first time this summer and hated it. She takes a hot bath twice a day.

She goes to bed at midnight and gets up at 9. Hey-her parties annoy her. Too messy. But she likes to be with congenial friends.

Her cigarettes are a special blend. They have gold tips and stamped black with gold tips.

"Gilda" Her favorite food are steak and onions, potatoes and corned beef and cabbage, but she won't eat anything out of a can.

Her favorite exercise is swimming, solitary her favorite game. Her pets are a cat and a poodle.

The latter is in Hollywood with her two automobiles and chauffeur.

A fatalist she never is blue more than a minute at a time.

She says, "My shimmy dance expresses me."

BARBS

Gene Tunney has been dropped from the Social Register. The guess is he would rather mix it in the ring than in more select circles.

As much as the flapper has been criticized, it must be admitted she has been the only one able to walk home after being taken for a ride.

I spun or side-slipped—I don't know which—into the ground with great speed.

"I broke my left ankle in two places and was well shaken up by this forced landing. After filling the air with smoke, which must have dazed the horse, I managed to catch him."

"We took off in a gentle lops and returned to the ship. I flew the ship to Elko. I had the haws tack a strap on the right rudder bar so I could pull as well as push. This made up for loss of my left foot."

NEW BROADCASTING HOOK-UP TO COVER TEXAS TERRITORY

Southern Broadcasting Company to Start Operation on Sept. 24

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
Washington —(CPA)—Texas, the largest state in the country, is to have its own broadcasting hook-up, designed to cover all of its 260,299 square miles of territory—and then some.

Information of the new network, linking seven of the existing stations in the state, has been completed, and will be inaugurated on Sept. 24.
To be known as the Southern Broadcasting company, the chain will be entirely regional in scope as a beginning, with nation-wide aspirations.

Programs designed to satisfy public demand is the theory upon which the new network is founded, according to its general manager, J. M. Gillham, of Fort Worth. Like the existing national networks it is a commercial enterprise, and plans to offer to its listeners sponsored programs along with the sustaining.

"These seven stations," says Mr.
Gillham, "cover thoroughly, summer and winter, 90 per cent of the nearly six million population of Texas. A large portion of eastern New Mexico,
Southern Oklahoma, south western Louisiana and Arkansas."

BASIC STATIONS
The basic stations of the network are Watt, Fort Worth, 1,900 watts power, on 1240 kilocycles; KGKO, 550 watts night and 350 watts day, on 470 kilocycles; WACO, WACO, with 1,000 watts; and WTSA, San Antonio, with 1,000 watts light, 2,000 watts day, on 1290 kilocycles. Three stations associated with the network are KTRH, Houston, 500 watts night and 1,000 watts day, on 1120 kilocycles;
WRR, Dallas, 500 watts on 1280 kilocycles, and KGRS, Amarillo,
1,000 watts on 1410 kilocycles.

Regional networks, to serve the radio needs peculiar to certain territories are becoming more and more in evidence. For several years there has been a regional hookup of stations of the Pacific coast, and about a year ago in the east, the "quality group" comprising stations WOR, at Newark, WMAQ, Chicago, and WLV, Cincinnati, as its basic outlets was formed, for interchange of major program features.

Sporadically, there have been attempts at the establishment of a third national network, to compete with the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system, but these have not materialized, because of the tremendous expense involved in such a project.

Reports now are current that station WOR, one of the ranking unattached stations of the country, will become the key of a third network.
It is reliably reported that Warner Bros., and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, are negotiating with this end in view, and also that the Hearst newspaper interests, which lately have become unusually active in broadcasting as a promotion medium, have broadcast the matter to the Bamberger Broadcasting Service, at Newark, which owns the station. Because of its strategic location in New York's metropolitan area, WOR is well adapted as a key for a third national network.

10,000 Feet Of Sidewalk Built Here This Summer

Over 10,000 feet of new sidewalk
—the equal to a walk from the corner of Oneida-st and College-ave to Butte des Morts golf course, have been laid in Appleton during the summer, according to figures obtained in the office of the city engineer.
Of this amount 7,048 running feet were installed by individual property owners, and 2,994 by city employees.

Notices to build sidewalks within 20 days are now being served on property owners by John Betts, sidewalk inspector, for about 900 different sections of walks in the city. After a thorough inspection of all sidewalks in the city, Mr. Betts turned over to the engineer's office a list of 900 sections of sidewalks in need of repair. After 30 days if the walks are not replaced by the property owner, the work will be done by the city and the cost charged to the property on the tax roll.

A total of $146 was collected so far this season in sidewalk permits.
Permits are necessary only when a new walk is being constructed, the

PRINCE WILL BE CERTIFIED PILOT

Wales Now Preparing for Tests Before Receiving
His License

London —(AP)— The Prince of Wales soon will be a certified airplane pilot—one of his most cherished ambitions.
He is actively preparing for tests he must undergo to receive a license.

The Prince has often traveled by airplane, and even had the stick in his own hands for a few minutes at a time, but he has never been privileged to make a solo flight.

In a short time all of the king's four sons will be skilled aviators.

The Duke of York was a world war aviator. The Duke of Gloucester has been learning to fly at Northolt aerodrome under the tution of Flight-Lieutenant E. Fielden. Prince George is also undergoing instruction.

The Prince of Wales has celebrated the near approach of the day he can start flying on his own by the purchase of a beautiful new airplane, a red, blue and silver De Havilland "Puss" Moth.
After passing his tests the prince will be a full-fledged pilot, but even then he can only take up his friends.
At the moment the prince is accommodated with an airplane of the Royal Air Force, piloted by Squadron Leader Don.
The final order as to whether this machine shall fly tests not with the Prince, but with the commandant of the aerodrome.
The commandant recently forlode the airplane to start on a trip to Wales because of the weather.
The prince had to proceed by rail.

COUNTRY LIFE GROUP TO STRESS FARM STANDARDS

Madison —(AP)— Holding that rural America is more attractive than urbanity, the American Country Life conference to be held here Oct. 7 to 19 will stress standards of living on the farm.
While the general theme of the conference is standards of living, approach will be made from three angles under supervision of J. H.
Swiss, rural sociologist at the University of Wisconsin college of agriculture. One field is to deal with the farmers' income in relation to living standards, a second with utilization of income, and the third is to study rural cultural arts.
Officials of the conference here announced today Miss Betty Erhardt, West Virginia state resemblance worker, will lead a forum deal-

Glorifying the American Goods

FLORENZ ZIEGFELD has brought himself a large-sized share of fame and fortune through his glorification of the American girl. Florenz saw no profit in beauty for its own sake. In his fashion, he brought this beauty to sing and dance before tired businessmen. He increased the Follies' gate receipts and made everybody quite happy.

This principle has its direct parallel in the work-a-day world of retailing. Your job, Mr. Retailer, is to sell goods which have been glorified to the particular public which buys from you. Your duty to your store is to see that your manufacturers are glorifying those goods to your public through this Daily League Newspaper.

This newspaper is the one medium through which you can expect complete coverage of all your customers. It is the one medium with which all of them are familiar.

It is, in its own way, the theatre on whose stage your manufacturers can expect to play to all of your public at one time, drawing the greatest audiences for the least expenditure.

There, Mr. Retailer, is the answer to your plea for more business. Here is your part: when you are shown proofs or told of a manufacturer's advertising campaign, make an honest effort to secure a fair portion of this advertising for your own Daily League Newspaper where it will do you — and the manufacturer — the most good.

It is this type of advertising which glorifies the American goods to your American public. Secure it. Conscientiously follow it up. Expect convincing results.

It's very simple and ever so smart. It's the slim silhouette that suits deb or matron.

It is lengthened by a circular skirt with smug shaping through the hips.

It is utterly chic. It depends entirely upon its lines for smartness.

You'll adore it fashioned of peach shantung, marine blue linen with white polka-dots, red and white printed batiste and cool green tones in cotton voile.

EX-EMPRESS WELCOMES ARCHDUKE'S MARRIAGE

London — (AP) — The Daily Express said today that the first telegram of congratulation received by the Archduke Albert of Hungary after his wedding at Brighton Aug. 16 to Mme. Irene Leibach, commoner and divorcee, was from the former Empress Zita.

London papers asserted today that Archduke either had renounced or must renounce claims to the throne of Hungary, to which he was a claimant, as a consequence of the morganatic marriage, thus leaving Zita's son, Otto, the only candidate for the throne.

Hints For The Shopper

Look to your household to determine your real needs. Price is the factor we think of most often and most unintelligently. Price is always secondary to need. High prices are by no means assurance of quality. Low prices are often associated with most expensive "bargains."

Sales are no more honest than the merchants who conduct them. Price reductions may be fictitious and inferior goods may be mixed with those described in the sale.

Federal and state courts may order sales in bankruptcy, closing of estates, etc.; but the courts in no way take responsibility for the merchandise honesty in such sales.

The sales clerk is your only direct contact with the world of merchandise. Make the most of that contact.

The Story of Sue

by MARGERY HALE
© 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

"O H, that's right," Ted smiled at his sister with big brotherly affection, as he set his glass of orange juice down. "I was with Jean Brady's sister, Joan. She's a knockout, too. Red hair, gray eyes and black lashes, not any taller than... well about three-inches shorter than either of you. And you wouldn't know she had a cent to her name. She came to visit Barbara and Jean roped me in on the party since I'm working for the firm."

Sarah's lips twitched almost unconsciously as she buttered a piece of toast. If a man wanted to tumble he tumbled, regardless of wealth, she was thinking. And if he didn't he didn't, and not all the king's horses and all the king's men could make him when he didn't want to. That was an easy philosophy. It left so much to chance... and did away with feminine intrigue. No, she corrected herself. It made matters worse because a girl needs an even more subtle, elusive art to combat it.

"I have to skip now," Sarah said when the dishes had been washed and the tea towels hung on the rack in the kitchen. "I'll drive you down, Sue. Dr. Burton is going to examine the hearts and lungs of some of our undernourished prodigies. He promised last night."

"Burton's rather good, isn't he?" Ted asked easily.

"He's quite splendid," Sarah responded loyally. "We're strong for him at the settlement ever since he came over to straighten out the tangle the night Jean Brady fainted. Jean rather likes him, too. I think, but he's still too humiliated to think Bill caught him down to show it. I hope the red-headed princess is in good humor today, Ted. Good-bye."

Sue had to admit, during the next few weeks, that it was a very romantic interest in her brother, she certainly disguised it. She finally decided that she didn't have... that if she once had been infatuated she wasn't any longer.

Jack wrote again and Sue sensed that his letters were not only interesting but interested. Then she didn't hear from him for a little while. Corrinne sent a letter which explained why.

"You should see the widow that has pulled Jack into her clutches. Sue, she's divine... as a widow I mean. She's the magazine type... black hair, almost blue, that she wears madonna style; great dark eyes that know too much, and oh boy, how they tell it... tall and slender and voluptuous. That's the best word I know. And yet she seems so sweet and pure and wronged when you know all the time that you are a darn fool for thinking anybody ever could wrong her. She would spear anyone with her needle first. This female is about as unlike Barbara as Harry is unlike Bob. The widow... her name is Julia Gerard... never seems to lift a finger to get anyone, but how she does lift her eyelashes! I'm cultivating her. Sue, I thought that I would be a aid society of one to protect the Thornton interests.

"Mrs. Gerard is older than Jack... about six or eight years. But age has brought her wisdom. Still, at that, I think some of her technique is a little old fashioned but I won't tell her so. I'm collecting pointers.

"I suppose you are wondering how it started. Well, you see somebody introduced them at a tea dance and they didn't look at anyone else after that. I did dance with Jack once in a while when he could tear himself free from the stren, but he didn't know he was dancing with me. He was thinking how wonderful she had told him he was."

GREENER PASTURES DISCOVERED NOW IN OFFICIAL SCANDALS

Graft, It Is Found, Has Filtered into More Respectable Level

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—Until about twenty years ago, the most profitable field of official malfeasance in large cities was blackmailing illicit business. In the series of New York city scandals, widening today, we have seen the state investigation of the entire city administration. It is disclosed that new and greener pastures have been found in the bartering of privileges and emoluments. There is, in this later phase an infiltration of graft into a much more elevated and respectable level of society. The old time skulduggery was more or less of a localized infection, which at certain times and places was effectively treated. Is it possible that the deep-dwelling Wickerham commission will come to the surface with a finding that the easy-money virus has worked into the national bloodstream? Back in 1912, when the Curran committee was examining Mary Goode, the country was shocked by her story of the brutal police exploitation of the thousands of wretched drabs who nightly paid tribute, as an alternative to being dragged down to Jefferson market court. This scandal, the shooting of Herman Rosenthal, the execution of Police Lieut. Becker and many others which preceded them, grew out of the corrupt alliance of city officials with the underworld; with dishonest politicians getting revenue from protected vice.

CONDITIONS IMPROVED
The succeeding years saw a definite improvement in these conditions throughout the country. State and city redlight abatement acts abolished virtually all the segregated districts. At least the more rowdy and blatant aspects of commercialized vice were overcome. A surface view might have indicated a millennium of "civic righteousness," as the militant reformers used to call it, but the later evidence of a dozen cities, with recurrent graft scandals is that none of these great commonwealths is yet sprouting wings.

Dr. Howard Lee McBain, dean of the graduate faculty of Columbia university, an expert on constitutional law, checks the last few decades and finds that little if any tangible gain has been made in the fight against graft.

"Despite the penal sanctions with which our numerous laws bristle, corruption in high places and low probably has been as prevalent in our era as any other in history," says Dr. McBain. "Those who administer the law are not always wise or even honest, and are, at best, humanly frail."

"In the United States there have been many changes during the last quarter century, in the field of public administration.

This was made almost inevitable by the increasing complications of a technological civilization, in which the individual found himself caught in the vortex of an ever-narrowing corporate concentration and control. Laws and courts are not sufficient to his needs.

"Neither the governors nor the governed have been or can be made good by law, and Americans are more interested in the logan than in the realities of efficiency and economy. Here and there arrangements have, certainly, at least the appearance of being better than they once were. But the margin of the unachieved is wide."

The successive scandals involving four New York magistrates, with one magistrate already sentenced to six years at Alcatraz, have not touched such shoddy business as the alliances with panders and gamblers formerly disclosed, but have led rather toward clubby intercourse with highly respectable seekers for privilege. As explained by Charles C. Burlingham, president of the New York city Bar association, there is possibly a wide field of connivance involving official wrongdoing in which campaign funds are contributed in consideration of a later appointment, but which, in a literal sense may not be in violation of the law. This new gloss of at least semi-respectability gathered by shady enterprises makes any probe of municipal government more difficult than it used to be when confined to the "lesser breeds without the law."

In two of the above four cases, the public scandal and in vestigation was touched off by an honest United States attorney, checking on income tax and, incidentally disclosing interesting material for the local authorities. It is noted that in prohibition enforcement the first venture of the federal government in the administration of sumptuary law, investigations of income tax returns in New York, Chicago and several other cities have opened more than one secret door. Regardless of one's views of the business of the federal government with sumptuary laws, such activity has, in fact, been perhaps the only means of producing several moribund and corrupt city governments.

TOONERVILLE FOLKS

MICKEY (HIMSELF) MCGUIRE

THE SECRET SIGNAL

Peggy was a very little girl—just five. Her family was one of those rich in relatives and poor in children. So everybody took an interest in Peggy. Sometimes this interest was hard to bear and Peggy was known to break into tears. Sometimes they were tears of rage, and then she stamped her foot and screamed. Sometimes they were tears of fatigue and then she lay down on the floor and wept copiously, and with waiting variations.

Father was her great friend, next to mother. Mother tried to keep the visitor's attention centered on other things but they always turned to Peggy. Then father had a bright idea. He and Peggy made up a secret. They would have some secret signs and talk to each other right when the other folks were in the room and they would never know.

If father coughed behind his hand and lifted his right eyebrow he meant, "How's tricks?" and if tricks were all right Peggy was to touch her hair back with her right hand and wink with the left eye.

If father should say suddenly, "Well there's that dog," Peggy was to run right out of the room and take a drink of water or have a little leg stretching race about the yard. That was to happen if tricks were not so good and there was danger of tears.

You have no idea what joy that secret charm held for a bothered little girl. If she was too tired to sit still any longer and she either had to sit still or get out of the place, she was to scratch the end of her nose with her right forefinger. Father was to rub his left ear when Peggy was to slip away.

You see it was the comfort of knowing that if things were too much there was a friend at hand and a way out. There was, too, the happy relationship between a child and her parents, a bond that was precious beyond words, one that would hold in times of stress. One that would hold in years to come.

Some grown people fear to have such understandings with a child. Some old idea of the place of a child and the dignity of the elders. Well, truth is stronger than dignity every time.

When grandmother is having a tantrum, and there are those who do—when uncle is being crabby and auntie edgy, it is far better to rub the end of the nose thoughtfully, and look expectantly at Peggy which signals "Isn't it awful?" than to pretend that things are all right—that whatever a grown-up does is right. Peggy will stand the row better and will have a truer understanding of life and of people, and the family tie will not be strained.

I think a code of secret signals are just the thing. Try a set of your own and see. They work in many a difficult situation.

LONDON BETTERS COSTUME JEWELRY

Turns to Imitation Stones Which Match Buttons on the Dress

BY AILEEN LAMONT

Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—(CPA)—Paris insisted on costume jewelry, and London has improved upon the idea. With a wool daytime dress, London is wearing a tailored appearing necklace of, for example, square, red, imitation stones. And these exactly match the square, red buttons of the dress.

SURPRISE! SURPRISE!

When you meet one type of autumn evening gown head-on, you see no adornment at all. Apparently the sumptuous satin of the frock is self-adorned. But when the lady turns her back on you—blast it there isn't a garland of flowers hanging from the rear of her left shoulder, and a big bouquet of 'em thrust into the back of her belt.

FRANKISH POSIES

The posies which everyone is pinning to belt or shoulder or lapel have taken a frankish turn, so far as materials are concerned. They are made of suede and leather, or of leather and braid. There is something pleasantly uncanny about a blushing red rose which on close inspection proves to be constituted of many rows of narrow silk braid and black leather foliage.

RICE STRAW PAPER

Rome—Italy, which has been paying high duties on paper imported from other countries for years, now is establishing an industry to make paper from rice straw. The ministry of agriculture has charge of the exploitation of this industry, and scientists are now at work developing machinery and processes to make fine book paper from the straw.

SOUTHERN PART OF CALIFORNIA EYES ELECTION

Hopes to Break Record of Northern Section for Land- ing Offices

BY BEN G. KLINE

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
San Francisco—(CPA)—The result of the California republican governorship primary election Tuesday— which was to virtually settle the question as to who will be the state's next governor— depended largely upon how many Southern California republicans resent the condition which might have gone on indefinitely had it not been for Boron Fitts, ambitious war veteran and "clean-up" district attorney of Los Angeles. Fitts has been telling the people down south about their inferior position with relation to high office and the success of his endeavor to replace Governor C. C. Young of Berkeley depends largely upon whether he has made them politically Southern California-minded.

In the three-cornered race Governor Young, of Berkeley, sharing northern California support with Mayor James Rolph, Jr. of San Francisco, has been particularly bitter in his denunciation of the sectionalism applied by Fitts. Pointing to accomplishment of his administration in Southern California, he has assailed the state as both tame and backward. Mayor Rolph has been content to work for votes in all of California's 58 counties, including Los Angeles.

Though prohibition has not been an issue, it has the surface Fitts and Young shared the dry votes against Rolph, classed as a "moist" or liberal on that question.

Rolph and Fitts have used the same ammunition to attack Governor Young's taxation policies. Governor Young's good roads accomplishments, in which Southern California has benefited as greatly as other parts of the state, have gained him support. Fitts is a war veteran and former high American Legion executive, but war veterans feel grateful for acts of the Young administration, so the veterans will divide their strength.

An interesting sidelight on the three-cornered race has been the silence and inactivity of Senator and former governor Hiram Johnson in the face of the severe fight against his political protégé, Governor Young. Speculation has it that the governor's campaign management requested Johnson to stay out of the fight to avoid an issue of Hoover versus Johnson republicanism.

Undertake New Experiment In Diets Investigations

Hamilton, N. Y. (P)—Here is unusual scientific news for those who enjoy eating. Scientists at Colgate university this fall are going to digress from the usual routine of finding out what is good for a person to eat, and see whether there may be direct benefits from eating according to what a person likes.

Colgate will analyze the benefits of flavor, savoriness and eye filling appearance.

This work will be done in the department of psychology under the direction of Dr. Donald A. Laird. The plans are announced in the Colgate Lab Log, which says:

"There has been a tendency in diet work for the past decade to treat man as a purely chemical machine working on calories, vitamins, minerals, carbohydrates, etc. Taste, odor and appearance of food have been largely neglected and it is these which will occupy most of our attention."

"Authorities recognize that the process of digestion is directly influenced by psychological factors as well as by the chemical constituents of the food eaten, and that the eater's whole temperament may be affected by good or bad digestion."

"Coming down to more practical matters we may consider the properly selected flavor and odor, and getting them with attractive appearance, offer a harassed wife the surest means of turning a moody husband into a sparkling table conversation-alist."

"Byron S. West, M. D., will work with us. F. I. Tomlins of Ridgewood, N. J., has been appointed chief chemist for this work."

MICHELSON TARGET IN PARTY DISPUTES

Magazine, I have offered to the press certain observations day by day from the pens of distinguished Democratic statesmen. These observations the press, in recognition of their obvious merits, has published—or has failed to publish. The decision as to whether to publish them or not to publish them has lain with you gentlemen and your editor.

"I have been only the funnel through which they have been transmitted to you. If there are going to be any libel suits, I fear that you will be involved. I deny, however, that any libel suits can happen. I hereby respectfully ask Mr. Tilson and Mr. Wood and Mr. Fess to point out any errors of fact made by the eminent and responsible Democratic members of the upper house and lower house of congress, or by the officers of the Democratic national committee, who have conveyed their public statements to the press across my desk. It has been my earnest endeavor to free those statements of all deviations from exactitude. If any such deviations should unhappily have occurred, which I am convinced is impossible, I want Mr. Tilson and Mr. Wood and Mr. Fess to let me know what they are. In the interim I protest against being made the object of misrepresentations by the Republican publicity machine."

"Is it true, however, Mr. Michelson, that you are the basic cause of all the troubles that Mr. Hoover may have had in the line of making himself understood and appreciated, as your fellow Democrat Mr. Frank Kent asserts in his magazine article about you, and that the statements which you hand us from Democratic statesmen are in fact, as Mr. Kent claims, written by you yourself?"

On these points Mr. Michelson declined to be quoted and intimated that he was unaccustomed to being a major political issue that he was not yet able to discuss himself with the immodesty which perhaps he would acquire with further experience in public life. He left his visitors to draw the conclusion that whatever similarities of English style might have been apparent throughout the multitudinous statements issued by him from Democratic authorities were to be attributed to the identicalities of thought and of conviction prevailing throughout his party. He concluded the interview by reiterating:

"The Republican party is now at last meeting our statements but it is meeting them with a mere general denial. In a scientific spirit of disinterested search for truth, and on behalf of the Democratic leaders who have now been so cruelly maligned, I await the Republican specifications of rebuttal."

FLASHES OF LIFE

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Langhorne, Pa.—Louis Hueback, truck driver, has been disillusioned. He had an idea that the law library of Chief Justice Hughes could move through this town at 40 miles an hour or more on the way from New York to Washington. Justice of the Peace Keating ruled otherwise in fining Louis $10 and $250 costs. Louis insisted on orders for speed and had to maintain contact with a truck load of which there was an armed guard. The first truck got out of town.

Flemington, N. J.—Miss Ann Stout who taught public school for years and outlived nearly all her pupils, is dead at 107. "Life is like arithmetic," she said on her last birthday. "The problems grow harder as you advance." She never rode in an automobile.

New York—Prof. Benny Leonard, the former lightweight king is to give a course in boxing at the school of business of the college of the City of New York.

Reading, Pa.—After 57 years during which the Rainbow fire company and paraded annually in red shirts, the present members insist on a change. And so the next parade will be in white shirts.

A sign pointing right says "Waupaca three miles."

But for that sign-post you might have traveled miles — spent hours, and come short of your destination.

Imagine yourself in need of hosiery, clothing, breakfast foods or anything else, and this newspaper without advertisements!

Fords Playing Last 1930 Home Game Sunday Afternoon

MEET KAUKAUNA AT BRANDT PARK; BEHR TO PITCH

Club Still in Running for Pennant if Rapids Can Be Beaten

AUGUST Brandt's Fords will close their home stand for the 1930 Fox River Valley baseball season next Sunday afternoon when Kaukauna invades the city for the afternoon's entertainment. Only one game remains on the schedule after Sunday and it will be played at Green Bay, Sept. 7.

Playing the best ball seen in the city in several years the Fords are still in the pennant running. However, their chances, while depending upon their ability to bump off some of the other ball clubs, also depends on someone beating Wisconsin Rapids. The Rapids plays Neenah-Menasha Sunday, the only team it really need fear during the remainder of the season.

The invasion of Brandt park by the Kaws Sunday should jam the old place to the gunwales. Appleton fans still have a team that may win the flag while the Kaws are just good enough to make it mighty tough for Len Smith and Eddie Kotal and company.

Three times this season the clubs have met and the Fords still have to register a victory. Last season the Fords copped four straight from the Kaws and it looks now as if the Electric City gang was to return the complement.

Lefty Behr who is gaining a reputation as a home run hitter along with a rep for being a pitcher, is to again take the mound for the Fords. It will be his first appearance against the Kaws and he wants to set them down. Then with a win over Green Bay next week he will have beaten every club in the league and Menasha twice.

Tulsa Joe Vnuik who came to the Kaws when Les Smith traded brother Red to Manitowish, will toss for the invaders. He pitched a five hit game against the Rapids last week and lost the decision 1 and 0.

ALL-STARS LOSE TO OSHKOSH TEAM

Suffer 6 and 0 Defeat in Hands of Flour Brothers Team Tuesday

Appleton All Stars took a white-washing Tuesday evening in the hands of the Flour Brothers softball team of Oshkosh, 6 and 0. The defeat was one of the few handed the Stars this season.

Two runs were scored by the winners in the first inning, and the remaining four in the sixth frame when N. Eilers, the Babe Ruth of the invaders hit a home run with the bases loaded.

The Stars had several chances to score during the game but lacked the punch to put-runners over the plate.

Mortell hurled for the Stars and whiffed 10 batters, while Eilers of the Oshkosh team retired 9. One error was chalked against the Stars; Oshkosh had no miscues.

A week from Thursday the Oshkosh team invades Brandt park for a return game with the Stars.

Shiocton took a trimming from Weyauwega and dropped into a tie with the Wega nine for second place. Murphy's Corners won the other league game by defeating New London 5 and 4.

Hack Wilson Ties With Babe Ruth In Race For 1930 Home Run Honors

Cubs Beat Pirates and Now Hold 5 1-2 Game Lead in N. L. Fight

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO'S baseball fans are about ready to look haughtily in the direction of New York and ask, "who is this fellow Ruth?" for Hack Wilson, hefty home-run hitter of the Cubs, has a new national league record in the Ruthian specialty and has drawn up on even terms with the great Babe in this year's competition at belting four baggers.

Mack hit his forty-fourth home run of the season to put a finishing touch on the Cubs' 7 to 5 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates yesterday, and in doing it passed the record Chuck Klein set a year ago. It took Klein the full season to beat Rogers Hornsby's old mark of 42. Wilson has beaten the young Philadelphia with 31 games to go. And he is tied with Ruth in the season's totals while the Babe is a week ahead of the record he set in 1927.

CUBS AT HOME 1 WEEK
The Cubs have a week more at home before they start in their final road tour, and Wilson has hit most of his homers in Wrigley field.
The Senators' smashing homer did not play a very important part in the Chicago triumph yesterday, which put the Cubs 54 games ahead of the New York Giants, who had a day of rest before the start of their series with Brooklyn. But Wilson contributed a single in the fifth which aided greatly in putting the game safely away as the Cubs scored five runs. This one frame decided an otherwise close game with Larry French having a bit the better of Ted Blake.

The St. Louis Cardinals continued their advance in the only other National-league game, defeating Cincinnati, 3 to 1 for their seventh successive victory. It left St. Louis only a half game behind the third place Brooklyn Robins with some prospects of improving their position as they continue against the Reds today while Brooklyn tackles the Giants.

MACK BEATS SENATORS
Only one game was on schedule for the American league yesterday and it finally brought the Philadelphia Athletics out of the difficulties which had beset them in the first two games of their series with Washington to a final 10 to 9 triumph which put them again in a fairly safe place, 73 games in the lead.

The Senators, who had threatened to make it a real struggle for the pennant by taking two straight from the league leaders, failed to hold a five run lead presented to them in the first inning. In the eighth, home runs by Mickey Cochrane and Al Simmons tied the score and two walks, a single and two sacrifices brought in the winning run.

COOPER'S VICTORY IN ST. PAUL OPEN SHOWS VALUE OF GOOD THIRD ROUND

WHEN Harry Cooper won the St. Paul $10,000 open he demonstrated quite a few things, some of which did not need a whole lot of demonstrating to those who follow understandingly the course of an open championship. After one plays in a few of these things, all the time watching the psychology of the game, a whole lot can be seen by a mere examination of the round by round totals.

Cooper made perfectly plain again, as has been demonstrated a good many times before, that the third round is about the best place to win a championship. No one ever loses very much if they can bat around the first thirty-six holes in something close to even form, but somehow they don't gain very much in the early rounds by returning scores in the sixties. Sarazen opened with a 67, which in the third round would have created consternation, yet on the same day there were three sixties and a sixty-eight, so there was not much in it.

Cooper fared differently when he returned a 68 in the third round for at that time he was the only man to beat seventy. With this score on the morning of the last day he gained four strokes and the lead from Horton Smith, who finished third, four strokes from Hagen, three from Lacey, and five each from Sarazen and Armour. The third round is a tough one for the leaders and a marvellous opportunity for one who happens to have his swing in the groove and the ball rolling for him.

SEVEN HOME RUNS HIT AS COLONELS BEAT MINNEAPOLIS

St. Paul Keeps Pace by Defeating Indianapolis, 8 and 6

BY PAUL MICKELSON
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO—(P)—Al Southern and his punch drunk Louisville Colonels have nipped their brief but dangerous losing streak after wading through the most withering home run storm that ever rocked an American Association game.

Seven circuit blows, one more than the all-time league record established by Minneapolis in 1925 and tied by the same club in 1927, boomed at Nicolet park yesterday and out of it developed one of the wildest games of the current campaign with the Colonels winning the decision, 13 to 11, over the Indians and keeping their two and one-half game margin over the climbing St. Paul club.

Louisville started the hitting orgy by pushing five runs across the plate. The Millers came back in their half of the first inning with 10 runs with Nick Cullop, new American association home run king, supplying the punch with a record tying pair of circuit smashes. "Slugg" Tolson, Miller first sacker, also supplied one in the big inning. After that home runs boomed off Colonels bats and four Louisville run were scored in the third, three more in the fourth and one more in the eighth for a victory.

Thompson, Louisville catcher, got two homers while his mates, Herman and Funk, contributed one each.

Cullop's pair of blows tied the record for most home runs in one inning established in 1927 by Eddie Kenna, former Minneapolis catcher. The blows also ran his string of homers to 48 for the season, six more than Benny Brief's former record.

St. Paul kept pace by defeating Indianapolis, 8 to 6, for its fourth straight victory.

Owen Carroll, former New York Yankee pitcher, made a victorious American Association debut yesterday, hurling Toledo to an 8 to 5 victory over Kansas City.

Milwaukee played an exhibition game with the St. Louis Browns and dropped the decision, 10 to 3.

Bounding Betty Is Fine Successor To Helen Wills

BY J. P. ALLEN Copyright 1930

NEW YORK—(CFA)—Persistence in their repeated assaults upon the women's lawn tennis championship title of this country has at last had its reward.

Miss Betty Nuthall, the nineteen-year-old darling of the British courts, has at last scored upon the American honors. To an extent she has balanced the account that has stood for 25 years. On her third venture upon the courts of this country she has swept through the tournament at Forest Hills, one of the best ever held, to a triumph that in all respects stands as a monument to her greatness of skill with the racquet which has been her toy since early childhood.

To say that Bounding Betty easily dominated the final match in which she defeated Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper of California, 6-1, 6-4, is scarcely doing her justice.

The British girl, properly speaking, was never extended. Her repertoire of shots, her clever timing and stroking, were always superior to those strokes of her American rival. Only in the second set did Mrs. Harper flash to the front, due to the mysterious chop and spin which she imparted to the ball. At this stage in the match, "Slugg" Tolson, Miller first sacker, also supplied one in the big inning. After that home runs boomed off Colonels bats and four Louisville run were scored in the third, three more in the fourth and one more in the eighth for a victory.

BRITISH, YANK TRACK STARS TO COMPETE TONIGHT

Fourth Meeting of Teams Is Expected to Draw Crowd of 25,000

CHICAGO—(AP)—Under the refulgent rays of huge arc lights, winged Mercuries of the British empire and the United States clash on historic Soldier field tonight in another international classic of the cinder track.

The battle of brawn and flying spikes, the fourth dual international track and field meet between the two English speaking nations, promised an estimated throng of more than 25,000 spectators thrills and new records.

England, aided by its best talent from six continents, presented a formidable front but was expected to lose in the 14 event struggle, although the result appeared to hinge on a but one—the 400 yard relay and the 450 yard shuttle races. In these, the Americans had the best record on season's form.

All six of the running races were all but conceded to the Britons while the American stars, most of them from the Pacific coast, expected to score a grand slam of first places in the weight and field events.

Leading England's invading army were such stars as Lord David Broughley, Olympic 400 meter hurdle champion, and Lord Burghley, second in the 400 meters at Amsterdam; Wilfrid Legg of South Africa, finalist in the 100 meters at Amsterdam; Douglas Lowe, winner of the 800 meters at Amsterdam and at Paris in 1924; Eric Liddell of Scotland, winner of the 400 meters at the 1924 Olympic games; James Ball, Canadian 400 meter star; Leigh Miller of Canada, who defeated all opponents in the indoor sprints last winter; Cyril Ellis, England's great miler; Phil Edwards, former New York university star, who will represent British Guiana and Lay, New Zealand's long distance javelin thrower.

Prominent among the American stars were Orval Martin, national intercollegiate one mile champion; Tom Warne, national collegiate pole vault champion; Eddie Tolan, George Simpson, dash sars; Ed Hamm, Olympic board jump champion; Steve Anderson, Washington university hurdler; Herman Brax and Eric Krenz, shot putters of fame; Ray Conger, distance star and Lee Sentman, university of Illinois hurdle star.

LOTT, DOEG IN DOUBLES TOURNEY

Big Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter Enter Quarter Finals

Brookline, Mass.—(AP)—The men's national doubles tennis championship tourney will get down to brass tacks here at Longwood today when eight seeded teams clash in the quarter finals round.

George Lott and Johnny Doeg, the defending champions, expected to encounter some of the stiffest opposition of their careers in Keith Gledhill and Ellsworth Vines, the California youngsters.

Johnny Van Ryn and Wilmer Allison, the Davis cup doubles players were down to clash with Sydney Wood and Frank Shields, two New York youths who have made remarkable court records this season. Berkeley Bell and Gregory Mangin, Davis cup alternates, appeared to have only an even chance against Fritz Mercier of Bethlehem, Pa., and J. Gilbert Hall of Orange, N. J.

The other quarter finals called for the appearance of Big Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, the 1927 champions and winners of last week's Newport casino doubles title, against the last of the three British pairs, J. S. Olliff and F. J. Perry.

Betty Nuthall, British girl who annexed Mrs. Helen Wills Moody's singles title at Forest Hills Sunday has teamed with George Lott for the defense of their mixed doubles title.

Boston—Marty Gallagher, Washington, D. C., defeated Henry Lamar Washington, D. C., (10); Andy Mitchell, California heavy-weight, defeated Jack Dudley, Worcester, Mass., technical knockout (2).

Sailing Cup Defenders Is Nerve Wrecking Work

BY LAWRENCE PERRY Copyright 1930

NEWPORT, R. I.—(CPA)—With the cup defender yachts tested thoroughly in conditions as rough and boisterous as anything in the way of tumultuous weather that would be accepted as safe for an America's cup race, the New York yacht club selection committee is now whittling for several days of moderate breezes and untroubled seas. A few races with the elements thus would enable the committee to come to a decision concerning the sloop best qualified to meet Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock V.

With the racing interrupted because of northeast gales, it was interesting to note how many of the yachtsmen serving in the after-guards of the four sloops turned to lawn tennis as a means of diversion, as well as relief from the strain of navigating the sloops under high pressure.

One of the most exhilarating sets of doubles on Friday and Saturday involved Harold Vanderbilt and his advisors on Enterprise. They played with huge enjoyment. On a remote court far from the crowds of spectators who surrounded the grand stand and club house courts at the casino watching the more or less expert exhibitions of Tilden, Allison, Hunter, Lott, Doeg, Fiebleman and the rest of the luminaries of the lawn tennis world.

Turning from sailing and yachtsmen, it may be said that the lawn

Len Wright, driving a model A Ford special won the race in 4:10.5. Art Heppner, driving a similar model, was second, and Al Congellar, piloting a Rajo, placed third.

Johnny Sawyer won the first event, a 10-mile race, in 8:59.4 with Art Foley second and Ted Rosman third.

Two other races on the program were postponed until Friday when a sudden rain made the track muddy.

MARATHON SWIM HAS 272 ENTRANTS

Large Field Representing United States; Fond du Lac Man Entered

Toronto—(AP)—The Canadian national exhibition's 15-mile marathon swim in Lake Ontario today attracted 272 entrants.

The first five to finish split $15,000—$10,000 to the winner; $2,500 for second place; $1,750 for third; $500 for fourth; $250 for fifth.

The United States furnished the winner last year in the person of Ed Keating of New York, and had a formidable contingent entered today. Carrying the hopes of the stars and stripes were such stars as Clarence Ross of New York; Norman Moss of Chicago; Marvin Nelson of Fort Dodge, Ia.; George Blagden of Memphis, Tenn.; Sam Shields of Miami, Fla.; Lyle Hubbard of Toledo, O.; John McMahon of New London, Conn.; and Roland Teghtmeier of Tacoma, Wash.; and Wm. J. Palm of North Fond du Lac. The only woman entrant also was from the United States, Ann Priller Benoit of Miami, who finished fifth in the woman's 10-mile marathon swim last week.

Canada's heavy entry list was headed by George Young, of Toronto, winner of the Catalina Island swim.

BIG PARADE OPENS ANNUAL CHILDREN'S PICNIC AT KAUKAUNA

Hundreds Watch as Kiddies March from Park School to Park

Kaukauna—Starting off at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning with a parade of about 100 entries, the second annual Children's picnic was held at LaFollette park. More than 300 children participated in the picnic which lasted throughout the afternoon with games and contests under the direction of the playground supervisors, Miss Agnes Egan and Mrs. Thomas Clark.

Hundreds of townspeople turned out to see the kiddy parade, which was held from the Park school to LaFollette park. Prizes were awarded to the winning entries. The parade included kiddy cars, bicycles, tricycles, scooters, and doll buggies.

Among the interesting entries were a covered wagon, fully equipped with colorful pioneers and cooking utensils and luggage; "Amos and Andy" open air taxi, with both the colored chauffeur and footman; stage coach, with armed cowboys driving; "Spirit of St. Louis", with the three members of the Lindbergh family dressed for flying; George Washington, and his pleasure horse; an old couple, dressed up to the style of the minute, even to the bustle; and Chinamen, Indians and negroes. There were even vegetable peddlers and travelling musicians in the parade.

After the parade ended at the park prizes were awarded and a 12 o'clock picnic dinner was served. Many parents were at the dinner. A stand was at the park where refreshments were obtained.

Prizes were won by the following: Coaster wagon: Caroline Kalista, E. VanHolt, "Amos and Andy Car", and Rosella Daughterty. Tricycle: William Mitchell, Eric Crimer, Betty Hess and Robert Eiting.

Chapter 14

A DILEMMA FOR TONY

IN the dining room, delightful with its old fireplace and antique furniture, Mary Lou met the other two members of Miss Titherington's household.

Mrs. Fawcett, the elderly widow of an Indian army colonel, lived with her as a companion. She and Miss Titherington once had been schoolmates. The other inmate of "Helm Green Cottage" was a Miss Pitts, a maid of all work. She was a buxom country girl.

The informal atmosphere soon made Mary Lou feel quite at home, much to her surprise. Her nervousness disappeared as Miss Pitts served lunch.

"I suppose you and Tony see a great deal of each other in town," Miss Titherington said, as the first course was being cleared away.

"Oh, yes, Mary Lou and I are great pals," Tony answered for her. "Playtime pals. Dancing together, parties together, you know."

Was it Mary Lou's imagination, or had he deliberately stressed the words "playtime pals"? Miss Titherington appeared to notice it, too. "I hear this season is fairly jolly in town."

"It is," said Tony.

"Not half as jolly, I'm sure, as the season here would be in India before the war," Mrs. Fawcett began.

Miss Titherington looked depressed.

"You must bring Mary Lou down for a week-end," she interrupted, addressing Tony.

"Great," he said. "I'll do it."

"Have you taken Mary Lou up yet?"

"Not yet," said Tony. "I'm going to ask her to go up with me some day next week."

Mary Lou's eyes shone excitedly.

"Oh, I'd love to go up. Will you really take me, Tony?"

"Sure," Tony told her.

"Well, you can have your flights," said Miss Titherington. "Nothing would induce me to go up in one of those abominable contraptions."

She reached for a little Swiss cow-bell and rang it sharply.

"Come along, then," she said to Miss Pitts. Then to Mary Lou, "Come along with me. I'll take you around and show you the garden."

Miss Titherington talked volubly on gardening matters and seemed pleased with Mary Lou's intelligent comments. Some time later as they stood in one of the hot houses inspecting some tomatoes, Tony's aunt remarked suddenly:

"Tell me, child, are you playing about with any nephew, or are you seriously fond of him?"

Mary Lou wished Miss Titherington wouldn't insist on asking such embarrassing questions. What was her idea, anyway?

"W—why, I—I'm fond of Tony, surely," she stammered.

Miss Titherington nodded.

"That's what I wanted to know. I've always been fond of him myself, and I don't understand any girl's wanting to marry him. But then," she chuckled, "I don't suppose we ever can understand why anyone should want to marry our relatives."

His aunt's disposition was so genial at tea time that Tony decided to broach the subject of his contemplated flight as soon as possible. There was an opportunity when Mrs. Fawcett lifted Mary Lou upstairs to see a collection of Indian brass ornaments.

"Look here, Aunt Ethelberta," he began. "I'm dead keen to start preparations for that flight around the world. Remember, I told you about it some time ago?"

"I remember," Miss Titherington's mouth shut like a trap.

Tony coughed nervously.

"And—er—I—I'd be most awfully grateful if you would help me out."

"Help you out? What can I do? I'm no mechanic. What are you driving at?"

"It—it's about the expense," he began again, this time more diffidently.

"Well, why on earth didn't you say so in the first place?" snapped Miss Titherington.

Tony swallowed twice in an effort to get control of himself.

"I—I'm just trying to be tactful, you see."

"Tut, tut. I have no time for tact on this proposition. I've been thinking this matter over for some time, for I knew you'd be after me again soon. Here's your answer: the money for this crazy flight of yours will be deposited in your name at the bank on the day your engagement is definitely announced—and not before."

Tony could only stare at her. He never had expected any such stipulation as this. Had his aunt gone completely out of her mind? What had his engagement to do with the flight, anyway?

"My engagement?" he said weakly.

"But you know that I've never thought of getting engaged!"

"Well, if you haven't thought of it, I've done it for you. I say again, that from the day your engagement is announced you can rely on me to back this absurd flight of yours. That's settled. Do you understand?"

His cigaret was burning Tony's fingers, but he didn't notice it.

"My engagement to whom?" he asked.

His aunt gave him a contemptuous look.

"To this new girl, Mary Lou, of course. She's a nice girl, sensible and unspoiled. You're lucky to get her. She'll make you a capital wife." She raised a hand when Tony started to speak.

"No, I won't hear a word of protest. You've played around too long. It's high time you settled down to become a useful citizen. Unless you persuade Mary Lou to become engaged to you, there'll be no flight as far as I'm concerned. My mind is made up."

With that she stalked impressively out of the room. Tony knew only too well of his aunt's stubbornness.

He was moody and silent as he drove Mary Lou homeward. The day had started out well enough, but now he felt that he was in the devil's own mess.

Mary Lou had impressed Aunt Ethelberta. There was no doubt of that. And she had insisted that he become engaged to the girl! Tony had brought Mary Lou down to prove to his aunt that he knew what a nice girl, but he never had intended her to think that he was serious. Hadn't he told her a dozen times that he had no intention of marrying?

He had tried to argue with her, but to no avail.

"It's all nonsense," he had said finally. "Mary Lou would laugh at the mere suggestion."

Ask her and see? Had been Miss Titherington's retort. "My mind's made up. I tell you."

Tony knew from past experience of his aunt's disposition. Once she had an idea in her head, it was worse than futile to oppose her wishes.

What was he to do?

On the one hand was his fixed determination never to marry any girl. Long ago Tony had promised himself never to become burdened with any domestic responsibilities.

And on the other hand, unless Mary Lou would consent to become engaged to him, he must give up all hopes of his flight. If Aunt Ethelberta didn't finance the flight his most cherished dream would be shattered. That was unthinkable. The flight meant more to him than anything in the world—more than a girl named Mary Lou.

Tony knew that Mary Lou would understand how eager he was to make the flight after planning on it for so long. If only she would consent to become engaged to him temporarily—say until the flight was completed—everything would be fine.

That would fulfill his aunt's insane stipulation, and surely there could be no harm in it, so long as Mary Lou understood perfectly that he was not serious.

Of course, there was Mary Lou herself to be considered, but he didn't see why she should object. She would have all the fun of an engagement, without the dread of matrimony. Besides, she was young, and probably she didn't want to get married for years, anyway. All she seemed to want now was a good time.

FORECAST ANOTHER GLOOMY PERIOD FOR OIL, GAS INDUSTRY

Producers, Distributors Are Faced With Keener Competition, Report Says

BY PRESTON S. KRECKER
Copyright 1930, by Cons. Press
New York—Financial Review and Outlook—Recent omission of dividends by two oil companies—Shell and Unocal—Warner-Quinn—and reports by others, indicate that all is not smooth sailing for the petroleum industry this year.

That some of the largest oil corporations, including nation-wide organizations, should not be able to earn their dividends comes rather as a shock to shareholders. It has been widely broadcast that the industry has made commendable progress in curtailing production of crude oil, that it is reducing its surplus stocks of gasoline and that sales of oil products this year are likely to surpass the record-breaking totals of last year.

All of those statements are correct. Production of crude oil has been cut to a level which brings it into balance with consumption. The gasoline surplus has been cut almost 15,000,000 barrels, or approximately 620,000,000 gallons in six months, and the nation's automobile drivers are consuming gasoline at a rate more than seven per cent above last year.

COMPETITION TOO KEEN
What then is the matter with the oil industry?

E. E. Reeser, able president of the American Petroleum Institutes, today put his finger on the sore spot in the industry when he asserted that the business of distributing oil products had become such a highly competitive one that it has fallen into a chaotic condition. There are too many gas stations, too much duplication of service and too much price cutting by dealers to leave a reasonable margin of profit.

Oil executives also point to another handicap which many regard as an even worse evil than excessive competition, and that is over-taxation. It is an astonishing fact that the tax on gasoline in some states is larger than the price of the product. It is evident then that three state governments receive a larger income from gasoline than the man who refines it after investing his capital, his brains and his time in producing and marketing it. Taxes are levied by twenty-seven other states all are so large as to leave a narrow margin between the market price and the tax. Moreover, in various states governments place the burden of collection upon distributors.

In contrast with those tax levels gasoline today is bringing only five and one-half cents a gallon in the whole market in Oklahoma, one of the biggest refining states. It is evident then that three state governments receive a larger income from gasoline than the man who refines it after investing his capital, his brains and his time in producing and marketing it. Taxes are levied by twenty-seven other states all are so large as to leave a narrow margin between the market price and the tax. Moreover, in various states governments place the burden of collection upon distributors.

In a sellers market the tax would be added to the price of the product, but in a buyers market, such as now exists, the tax really comes out of the pockets of the producers, because, by reason of competition, they are forced to lower their own price to include the tax.

The outcome is that upwards of half a billion dollars tax is being levied on the oil companies and distributors. The annual tax on gasoline last year netted a total of $449,731,000. That was 47 per cent above the year previous and it will be larger this year.

It would require the consolidated net profits of a good many companies to equal that huge sum. Yet oil executives do not seek the abolition of the gasoline tax. They seek its benefits in good highways, rendering automobile safe and easy, and increasing consumption indirectly. It is a question, however, whether some states do not overdo the tax.

NEW DIPLOMATIC HOME IS PLANNED

Consulate-general Will Be Built by U. S. in China

Shanghai—A landmark of this Chinese port, over which the American flag has flown for 20 years, is coming down to make way for America's consulate-general.

The structure will be the finest of its kind in all Asia and will set a new standard for United States diplomatic buildings abroad.

The site, on the Whangpoo river, Shanghai's artery to the sea, is in full view of every steamer entering or leaving the port.

Destroyers of the old buildings have begun and within two years there will be completed a new five-story structure which will furnish living quarters and office space for Edwin S. Cunningham, of Maryville, Tenn., consul general here for seven years, and his entire staff of about a hundred.

The old buildings were erected about four years ago and when structures reach that age in Shanghai they are old. The soft mud brick of which they were made began to disintegrate years ago and great slabs of masonry from various parts of the structure had been subjected to shell fire.

The foundations sank until floors were so uneven that steps had to be constructed between some of the rooms. So frail did the main office become that steel safes housed on the second floor were removed to the basement, lest they crash through and wreck the whole interior.

But although the old buildings were deteriorating and sinking in value, the opposite was true of the ground on which they stood. The government bought the property 15 years ago, paying a third of a million dollars for it. It is now worth a whole million and with Shanghai real estate values booming, it will soon reach a higher level.

Europe's Dictator-King Tightens Balkan Hold

KING ALEXANDER LED HIS TROOPS IN THREE WARS

Better times have come to Yugoslavia under the iron rule of King Alexander, pictured above, although many a dark deed has been attributed to his movement to crush political parties opposing his regime. But 41 years of age, Alexander is the only dictator-king in Europe.

BY MILTON BRONNER

London—Europe, which was made unsafe for democracy by the World war and its aftermath, and which has thrown up dictator after dictator, has one boss who is today unique in his kind because he is a sovereign—King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

This man, who is only 41, is not only the sole king-dictator in Europe, but is the only one who led troops in the field in three wars—the two Balkan conflicts and the World war. He has just saddled two of his allies—France and Czechoslovakia—by issuing a notice that his assumption of supreme power on January 6, 1929 is to continue permanently and that his hold on things is to be strengthened, in lead of being weakened, or modified, or swept up.

Austria-Hungary used to be known as the ramshackle empire because of the many and conflicting races within its borders—Germans, Austrians, Hungarians, Croats, Slovaks, Czechs, Italians, Poles and Serbs. Yugoslavia, created by the peace treaties after the World war, or rather enlarged by those pacts, is almost as ramshackle. Its only difference is that most of its subjects are at least Slavs by blood and race—Serbs, Croats, Dalmatians, Slovenes, Bosnians, Montenegrins. But they are divided by religion, the Serbs being mainly Orthodox, the Croats, Roman Catholics and the Bosnians, Moslems.

NATION IN TUMULT
For years after the end of the World war, Yugoslavia struggled along with parliamentary government under its own constitution, but never got anywhere. The Croats, who were more advanced in civilization than the Serbs and who had in Zagreb a modern up-to-date city compared to the slothful Belgrade, complained that the government was so centralized that everything favored the Serbs and that the tax money was used for the aggrandizement of Belgrade. Business in the parliament was at a standstill because of the fights between the Croats and the Serbs. Corruption was rife. There was slackness in administration. In the parliament Croat members were actually murdered.

King Alexander mulled over these things for a long time. Because of the Europe in which his kingdom is placed, it was necessary that Yugoslavia should have a strong sense of nationality and be prepared to fight for its existence. It is no secret, that for Yugoslavia the possible enemy is Italy. They face each other across the Adriatic. By treaties and by grabs Italy has seized most of the important ports on the east side of the Adriatic which should have been Yugoslav.

Alexander made up his mind to do a singular thing. He would wipe the methods of his possible enemy. When Italy was torn with internal dissensions and parliament wasted time, Mussolini and his Fascists grabbed the power and proceeded to build up a strong state. Alexander made up his mind to do a singular thing. He would wipe the methods of his possible enemy.

CZECHS DRILL CITIES UNDER GAS ATTACKS

Prague—Czechoslovakian army authorities are making thorough preparations for the eventuality of gas attacks on a large scale in the next war, whenever it may occur.

Flying maneuvers are being held in Eastern Bohemia with mimic gas attacks on the towns of Pardubitz, Písek and Konevitz. During these attacks the civilian population is called upon to utilize the means of defense laid down by the army general staff.

The attacks take place at night when, on signal, all lights in the towns must be extinguished. The Czechs, the gymnastic societies and the Red Cross branches all provided with gas masks of the latest pattern, turn out and conduct exercises to shelter where they will be safe from gas bombs launched from the planes.

CAUGHT!
New York—Jack Levy didn't like Sing Sing prison, so he sewed himself in a mattress to get out. Everything went well enough until the mattress was on its way out of the prison gates. There guards saw it looked better than usual, and investigated. They found Levy and he was returned to solitary confinement.

CHICAGO CROWDS BREATHLESS OVER GLIDER EXHIBITS

Sea Gulls, They Agree, Take Second Rating for Coasting Ability

BY SHERMAN B. ALTICK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Chicago—CPA—After pop-eyed wonderment at the beautiful soaring performance of motorless gliders, crowds attending the national air meet here gave the sea-gull a second class rating for sky-coasting ability.

There is a fascination about the gliders which soar lazily about the airport, maneuvering among the air currents with amazing ease. Several types of aerial coasters are represented in the contest here and their pilots control them with marvelous skill. J. K. O'Meara, a cadet flier, showed the maneuverability of the powerless birds by landing within three feet of a designated mark.

This type of flying, already immensely popular in Germany, has taken such a vogue in this country, that it is becoming necessary for federal and state governments to exercise some supervision over glider clubs.

AUTO-GYROS QUEER
The three auto-gyros—"flying windmills"—are viewed with the gliders and the dare-devil air performers, for crowd interest.

They represent a bizarre appearance above the field, with their four blades fan extending above the fuselage, resembling nothing so much as a Dutch wind mill in a horizontal position. The most apparent utilitarian worth of the auto-gyro is its ability to land in a small space.

Jimmy Ray and C. K. Faulkner, of Philadelphia, were at the sticks of two of the planes and after cutting their motors when several hundred feet aloft were able to drop almost vertically down and land, as some said "like a tired hen."

The auto-gyros are able to loaf about in the air almost like a balloon and while they lack the speed of the average plane, they do help solve the safety problem for the citizen who has ambitions to do his traveling by air.

Marcel Dore of France, has quickly become the hero of the crowds. Flying a sleek, fast, low-winged Hispano ship, the Frenchman makes his tiny ship a corker with his. He whips it about to the close-cropped grass and then shoots into the air to an altitude where his motor refuses to go further.

Another favorite is Jimmy Doolittle, piloting his small mystery ship.

Tuesday was "famous flyers day" and the races, but the women pilots are holding the spotlight so well that all other events are overshadowed.

Instead, he split these ancient lands into nine new banats or provinces, naming most of them after rivers—Danube, Sava, Vrbas, Drina, Zeta, Morava, Vardar and finally Maritime. ## Tweeds And Crepes To Be Popular During Winter

(This is the third of six stories to be sent by wire on successive days covering the field of feminine fashions for this fall and winter. This story deals with daytime dresses. Tomorrow: Evening gowns.)

BY ADELAIDE KERR
New York—Feminine daytime gowns this season will range from gay loose woven tweeds for fall to duller toned crepes on winter days.

Tweeds galore will probably be seen during the fall days. But the American woman who lives in a steam-heated home has less fondness for the woolen frock than her European sister and winter citizen who has ambitions to do his traveling by air.

Marcel Dore of France, has quickly become the hero of the crowds. Flying a sleek, fast, low-winged Hispano ship, the Frenchman makes his tiny ship a corker with his. He whips it about to the close-cropped grass and then shoots into the air to an altitude where his motor refuses to go further.

Alexander's whole endeavor has been to make all his people regardless of race, religion or province, feel themselves Yugoslavs. To accomplish this one of his first strokes was to abolish the centuries-old territorial divisions of Serbia, Croatia, Dalmatia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, Montenegro, Macedonia and Slovenia. Instead, he split these ancient lands into nine new banats or provinces, naming most of them after rivers—Danube, Sava, Vrbas, Drina, Zeta, Morava, Vardar and finally Maritime. Moreover these banats are cleverly maneuvered. Also Bosnia and Herzegovina were split into four parts and added to four banats so as to put the Moslems in a permanent minority.

Over each banat, the dictator placed a Ban, or lieutenant governor responsible only to himself and his premier. Each Ban was given a local council, but the councilors are not elective. They are appointed by the king and premier and can be removed at any time.

THINKS PREJUDICES
OVER RELIGION ARE SMASHED BY RADIO

Different Parts of Country
Brought Closer Together,
Says Aylesworth

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
New York—Let some pessimists worry over the prospects of radio's future and its possible effect on other means of communication and entertainment—

Merlin Hall Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company and an authority who can speak for the entire broadcasting field, looks over the population of the United States, its varied interests and beliefs, and sees what radio is doing to it today. He doesn't worry about the future, for he sees in the present the great change that radio broadcasting is bringing about in the hearts and the minds of the people.

"The most interesting subject to me today," says Aylesworth, "is the influence radio has on people of all types and classes, and even on those participating in its development. When radio can produce a decided change in the careers of individuals or groups, it becomes a significant influence in public life.

"There's Floyd Gibbons, for example, a man who had been living an adventuresome, carefree life until he came into radio. His voice caught, and now for the first time he has to conduct his life on time.

"There's Jessica Dragonette, purely a radio personality. There's Roy and Selma Parker, and many others, who now associate almost their entire lives with radio."

But far greater is the change upon the public, thanks to radio, says Aylesworth—its breakdown of religious prejudices, its development of a more sincere understanding between urbanite and ruralite, its spread of enlightenment beyond the city limits and its widespread educational influence.

LESS RELIGIOUS PREJUDICE
"To me the most interesting and significant development in radio has been the gradual breakdown of religious prejudice. There used to be a feeling of resentment, in the early radio days, of one Protestant sect against another that happened to be on the air, or of one religion against another. Now everybody knows that he can listen to a Catholic, Jewish or Protestant service on the air without wrecking his faith in his own belief.

"The same sort of improvement may be noticed in connection with our National Farm Home Hour. The greatest handicap to agricultural development heretofore has been the lack of interest the cities have shown in it.

"Now for the first time we have city people listening in to these farm programs, learning the problems of the country and actually interesting themselves in this subject.

CITY MEETS COUNTRY
"On the other hand, we have brought the sound of the city to the country and so acquainted the rural folk with the thoughts and vagaries of a life to which they had heretofore been strangers. The result has been a closer association and sympathy between ruralite and urbanite, which no influence but radio could have attained."

The truth of this statement is brought out by the popularity in city and country of such rural sketches like the adventures of "Uncle Abe and David" and "Real Folks." Even the most rural sections of the country, such as the lone hills of Kentucky, and Tennessee, have produced a sympathetic feeling among urban folk through their Hill Billy broadcasts, while Broadway in turn has been better understood outside the city limits.

Considering both these heretofore estranged groups, radio broadcasters have developed a more universal type of entertainment. It isn't purely rural. Neither is it so sophisticated as to bar those not in cities from listening in.

"The form of radio broadcasting has changed immensely," Aylesworth declares, "because of this universal appeal. We have begun to present the problems of agriculture in such an interesting way as to appeal to those who never felt these problems before. We have devised short talks and adapted comedies for the radio, so that they will fit into the home life of everyone.

AGAINST SCHOOLROOM RADIO
"It is a kind of entertainment, a sort of appeal that is foreign to all other types of entertainment. And

Sez Hugh:

MOST GIRLS ARE EVENTUALLY OLD ENOUGH TO KNOW BETTER THAN TO HAVE ANY MORE BIRTHDAYS!

It is prepared so that it will appeal to everybody.

"Even in education radio has found its line of development in its reaching the adult more so than children. After some time of experimentation on this subject, my mind has turned largely away from schoolroom education by radio because I believe there is no greater influence than the teacher in the education of children. Perhaps a broadcaster might tie up locally with a school for partial classroom instruction, but I don't believe it's effective nationally.

"It's the adult whom radio can get close to and help toward a better education. He may come home evenings, feeling very tired, but he needn't be too tired to turn on the radio set and sit comfortably by while something both instructive and entertaining comes to him.

"Thus the tired family can get something over the radio that it would have to go out for otherwise, or that it might not be able to afford."

BARBERS TO PLAN FOR EVENING CLASS SERIES

Plans will be discussed for beginning instruction Wednesday, Sept. 3. Mr. Moser will conduct similar classes in a circuit involving cities throughout the Fox river valley and other parts of the state.

MANUFACTURER AND
LABORER MUST WORK
TOGETHER--KOHLER

Harmonious Relationship Is Necessary to Commonwealth, He Points Out

Milwaukee —(AP)—The farmer, laborer and manufacturer must dwell in harmonious relationship if the state is to survive as a prosperous commonwealth, Gov. Walter Kohler said today in addressing the grand stand state fair.

Inasmuch as the state government is vitally interested in the well-being of the triumvirate, the people of the state should cooperate and assist an administration to conscientiously protect and advance the interests of all three, the governor said.

It is entirely apparent that viewed broadly the economic interests of any one of these three important groups is to a very great extent dependent upon the other two," the governor said. "If the truth of this fundamental principle is not observed Wisconsin is doomed to a steady and sure decline in economic well-being.

"Mush legislation beneficial to farm and victory workers has been enacted by the state in the past. The services which government performs for the people, have been greatly amplified. The future will doubtless see an increase in the scope of such services. For example, 10 years ago a total of only $5,000,000 was spent for highway purposes. In the fiscal year just past over $25,000,000 were disbursed to improve our roads, more than five times as much.

"I do not know of any single accomplishment which by itself would more effectively aid all three economic factors of our well-being, the farmer, the worker, and the factory, than the rapid completion of a comprehensive highway system.

"In my opinion only a state government based on mutual confidence and understanding among the many groups which make up Wisconsin's population; a government which will refuse to appeal to prejudices, animosities and selfish impulses, and a government which will approach its job in a sincere and conscientious manner, can hope to be effective in solving the many problems, which confront the state."

After his speech Gov. Kohler flew to the Waupaca county fair at Weyauwega, where he spoke on the highway problem, taxation, and the penal and charitable institutions of the state.

Woman's Party To Keep Up Fight For Equality

Augerville La Riviere, France — (AP)—Recent amendments to the Cable act are inadequate, says Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the National Woman's party.

The amendments remove chief discriminations against married women in the nationality law and facilitate recovery of the nationality by American women married to foreigners.

"We are now planning to introduce in congress another bill to remove all the inequalities between men and women which still remain in our nationality law," Mrs. Belmont said.

A campaign will be waged to keep congress constantly reminded, she said, that:

American women but not American men lose citizenship upon marriage to foreigners ineligible to citizenship in the United States.

Foreign men but - not foreign women married to foreigners ineligible to United States citizenship can be naturalized in the United States during the marriage.

American women married to foreigners may not give American nationality to their foreign born children.
